VOL. 34 No. 35 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, July 8, 1989 | 50¢ Per Copy | $12.50 Per Year

The Berry family and co-workers gather mid-morning in the alfalfa field anxious to get the baler and hay wagons on the move while the hot sun shines on their 100-acre farm in southern Lebanon County. Rain Favors Outbreaks Of Slugs

BY J.F. STIMMEL
AND A.G. WHEELER, JR.
Pennsylvania Department
Of Agriculture

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Farmers are facing difficulties brought about by above-average rainfall. In addition to not being able to plant corn and problems in haying due to wet conditions, they are plagued by an unexpected pest -- slugs.

Conditions this year are ideal for slugs. The relatively mild winter caused low mortality in overwintering eggs. An early, dry spring retarded hatching; then the wet conditions needed for egg hatch set in.

The resulting "slug" of slugs, along with the extended wet weather, produced localized high populations that can be destructive.

Fields most susceptible are those with accumulations of duff, such as no-till systems. This debris provides ideal overwintering sites for slugs. Fields with much lodged grain are favorable for these pests, because moisture levels are high beneath the mats of plants.

Effective June 23, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has declared that a crisis situation exists with slugs in field corn. Under the provisions of Section 18 FIFRA, the pesticide LARVIN 3.2 Thiodicarb will be used as the control agent.

LARVIN is formulated as a bait for use in field situations. For specific information on the use of this pesticide, contact your county extension office.

Home gardeners are familiar with slugs and their damage, but farmers are seldom bothered. The most common field-infesting slug appears to be the gray garden slug, Derocerus reticulata, according to Dr. Robert Byers, an entomologist with the USDA Regional Pasture Lab at State College.

This pest feeds by stripping a layer of tissue from host leaves.

Newspaper Bedding Makes Dollars For Farmers; Sense For Environment

BY PAT PURCELL

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Straw prices hit $100 per ton nearly a year ago, and instead of pealing off dollar bills, Jim Berry began thumbing through his newspapers. He wasn't looking for cheaper bedding prices. He was looking at cheaper bedding.

This dairy farmer from the southern Lebanon area has turned to shredded newspaper as alternative bedding material. And like many other dairyman who use newspaper, Berry finds that besides being cheaper than straw the newsprint absorbs moisture and odor better than straw.

At this same time Berry installed a 12' by 46' manure storage system. He wondered how well the liquid manure system and spreader would handle the newspaper scraps.

"I was afraid there would be newspaper scraps blowing around the fields, but an hour after the newspaper is put into the system the paper turns to mush. It's great," said Berry.

Berry finds the newspaper dissolves rapidly in the manure storage and spreads well on the field.

Using newspaper for bedding is not a 1980's idea. In the 1960s Penn State University researchers ran trials on recycling newspaper for bedding. Their findings showed that as long as newspapers were properly prepared they served as a good bedding material for dairy cattle in both stall barns and on bedded packs in loose housing.

Recent research has confirmed those findings. According to Lowell Ayres, recycling coordinator for Potter County, shredded newspaper is better than straw for bedding dairy cattle. Ayres headed a pilot project in Potter County involving several dairy farmers who used the newsprint bedding.

The newsprint was dropped into bedding shredders and blown directly into the stalls. The used bedding then went into manure holding pits where it dissolved and

Beef And Veal Ambassadors On Road

BY

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.)—Beef is back and veal is here. That's the message the State Beef Industry Representative Program (BIR) tells consumers across Pennsylvania.

Last week, Thursday through Saturday, representatives from the Pennsylvania Beef Council, using check-off dollars, were cooking up delicious samples in Willow Valley Square. And patrons stopped by the attractive display to get pointers on how to prepare beef and veal and ask questions about the industry.

"People aren't aware of the changes the industry has made in the last five or 10 years," said Barry Sands, BIR spokesman. "We need to educate the public about the lower fat and cholesterol content of beef and veal."

Acres Corn Update: Limit gains for corn were the result of another day of weather related buying after the latest National Weather Service 6 to 10 day forecast. Prospects for hotter and drier weather opened the pit limit higher with limited selling midday emerging. Unfilled buy orders on the close numbered nearly 29 million bushels. Limitless July closed 11-3/4 cents higher at $2.83-3/4 after trading in a range from $2.78-3/4 to $2.83-3/4. December never moved from its 10 cent limit gain and remained at $2.71-1/2 throughout the day. Oats also posted limit gains with limitless July posting an eleven cent gain. Bids for generic certificates were 1/2% higher today at 99 to 100-1/2%.

Acres Soybean Update: Soybean futures settled limit higher across the board this afternoon with limitless July gaining 36 cents and closing at a 14 week high of $7.76-1/2. Most months opened limit higher on the latest National Weather Service forecast calling for above normal temperatures and below normal rainfall for the next 6 to 10 days in the western belt. Continued rainfall in the southeastern states also provided support with unfilled buy orders on the close totalling nearly 4 million bushels on the November. Some activity midday was tied to South American hedge selling and speculative profit-taking. November closed back above $7.00 today at $7.02 after trading to a low of $6.97 midday.

Acres Wheat Update: Chicago wheat futures posted gains today from 9 to 9-1/2 cents, mainly on spillover from limit gains in the corn, soybean and oat pits. Pressure was tied to the harvest amid concerns over a slack near term export outlook. The prospect of hot and dry weather in the spring wheat belt during the heading stage prompted buying. July gained 9-1/2 cents and settled at $4.04 after trading in a range from $3.98 to $4.05 while September gained 9-1/4 and settled for the day at $4.11-1/2. Some spread trading was featured today with the absence of delivery notices prompting bull spreading against the September.

Trucklot buying interest was moderate to good. Supplies of yellow legs and leg quarters were short of an active call, while white product increased in availability to a light demand. Breast items were in light supply, particularly whole breasts which were in demand for planned retail ad activity and improved orders for boneless supplies. Demand for wings was not as active as other items and supplies were generally adequate and in fairly good balance.

Delmarva Broiler Fryer Market

July 5, 1989

Demand for ready to cook whole fryers was fairly good today. Supplies were adequate for current needs. In the parts complex, the supplies of cutlets were adequate to instances fully adequate, whole breasts ranged tight to about adequate, legs and leg quarters were short of needs, and wings were in close balance for a good demand. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 58-70 cents. Live supplies were adequate with average weights on the light side of desirable. Today's slaughter schedules were heavy. The trade sentiment was steady but cautious.

National Egg Market

July 5, 1989

The market tone was generally steady. Cartoned egg movement was quite irregular around the nation. The best movement was usually reported in resort areas and where promotions stimulated some additional buyer interest. Supplies though closely cleared in some sections were for the most part sufficient to satisfy dealers needs. Breakers were cautious and usually had adequate stocks for their limited working schedules.

Eastern PA & NJ Poultry

July 5, 1989

The trade sentiment was barely steady to weak. Offers from producers have increased over prior week but were still short of trade needs. Buyers were cautious and bid at lower price levels. Most processing plants will operate only three days this week. Demand for canner pack product was generally fair at prices mostly unchanged to down one cent.

LIVE LIGHT TYPE HENS: AT FARM 14-16.

New York Eggs

July 5, 1989

Prices were unchanged. Trade sentiment was barely steady and cautious. Cartoned egg demand was mixed; fair to good in some areas, disappointing and no better than fair in others. Supplies were generally in good balance and in most cases easily satisfied dealers needs.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

JULY 10-16; 1989

Bastille Day, July 14

July 10, 1917, Emma Goldman sentenced to 2 years in prison for trying to slow down the draft quotas . . July 12, 100 B.C., birthday of Caius Julius Caesar . . . Average length of days for the week 15 hours 2 minutes . . July 13, 1859, Mormon Church president Brigham Young states in interview with N. Y. Tribune editor, "I have 15 wives; I krtow of no one who has more." . . Love is like war. easy to begin but very hard to stop. — H. L. Mencken.

Ask the Old Farmer: What do you mean when you say "I mistrust?" Is it "I do bt" or "I don't doubt?" T. K., Ill.
"I mistrust" is old Yankee, meaning "I take it for granted" or "I suspect."

Home Hints: Cut a rose just above a five-leaf cluster

New England: Sunny and seasonable, that's reasonable; cloudy; showers and then clearing. Precipitation this month is only 1 5", below the usual amount.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Partly cloudy and showers; sunny and hot for a refreshing mid-week's break; then sprinkles and cooler to end the week.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Showers are heavy in central and western parts; warm and seasonable; then scattered showers and rain coming in the west.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Rain in the northeast is a result of a tropical storm; seasonable weather overall and a few showers keep it wet.

OPINION

Beef Is Back And Veal Is Here

Several months ago we saw that a group of people who oppose animal agriculture had set up a booth in a large shopping center. They were dispensing information that was slanted against agriculture. This was done to raise money for their cause. And the public was listening to their story.

At that time, we said farmers should use this method to tell their side of the story. And this week we report on another information booth, an information booth that exposed consumers to the farmer's side of the story.

The Pennsylvania beef and veal industry information program had their representatives on location at Willow Valley Square in Lancaster County. But it could have been anywhere in Pennsylvania, because that's what Barry Sands and Kelly Lynn Mankamyer do all year. They set up a booth and a grill and get consumers to talk and taste the good meat produced on our farms.

And these good-will ambassadors do get questions. Mankamyer who is also the State Cattlemen's Assn. Beef Queen says the only information many people know has been dispensed by animal rights groups. "All we can do is tell what actually happens on the farm and let the public know the facts," Mankamyer said. "But it's hard to change minds when when they are emotional."

However, this Beef Industry Representative (BIR) program does change minds. Supported by the check-off dollars supplied by producers, a positive story for beef and veal is told on the front lines of consumer purchasing decisions.

We commend the industry and the representatives who take the farmer's message to the consumer in this way. From the interest shown by consumers at the booth in Willow Valley Square, you could readily see that the industry message is true.

"Beef is back, and veal is here."

NOW IS THE TIME

To Check Ventilation Systems During Hot Weather

Ventilation is most important during hot and humid weather. During hot weather our hog, broiler and layer houses need more air movement inside the house. I would suggest placing circulating fans inside the house to move more air across the birds or animals. This will definitely give relief. In weather reports it's known as the "chill" factor. If you move air at the rate of 500 c.f.m. across the bird or animal, it will reduce the temperature to the bird or animal by 10 degrees F.

I know if the temperature is 95 degrees F. outside it will not be any cooler than 95 degrees inside, but the chill factor would make it feel like 85 degrees to the animal.

Another very important factor during hot weather is to ventilate the attic. The best way is to have an inlet at one end and an exhaust fan at the other end. If you don't move the air out of the attic, the temperature can rise to over 150 degrees F. This trapped hot air will eventually work down through the insulation and into the house.

To Use Pesticides Safely

If you ever spill pesticides on your skin, wash it off immediately. Research by a dermatologist shows that washing is most effective within one minute of exposure and less effective half an hour after exposure. This indicates the urgent need for immediate attention following the skin exposure to pesticides.

The research also shows that the amount of absorption of pesticides through the skin varies with the location on the body. The forehead absorbs seven times as much pesticides as the forearm. And the scalp absorbs four times as much as the forearm and palm. The three areas for the entry of pesticide into your body are through the mouth, nose and skin.

It is very important that protective covering be worn by anyone that mixes and applies pesticides. Face masks and protective coverings are available through many farm supply stores.

To Check Alfalfa For Insect Damage

The excessive rainfall during May and June gives excellent conditions for an increase in leafhopper and aphids on our alfalfa this year. Much of the second crop is showing damasge. At this stage of maturity, it's best to cut it. Then spray the stubble to protect the next cutting. The Agronomy Guide lists a number of materials that are effective, including Guthion, Carbaryl, Furidan and Malathion. Cygon is effective on a week to ten day regrowth. Always follow label directions.

To Keep Dogs Under Control

The summer months increase outdoor activity with your dog. Keep in mind that a dog owner's responsibility is to keep their pet under control at all times. Free roaming dogs cause accidents, bite, damage property and can be a general nuisance. They also carry disease from farm to farm. Be sure your dog has rabies protection. Dogs are personal property and the owners are responsible for any damage caused by their pets.

Many dog related problems would be alleviated if owners were more aware of their responsibilities. All pet owners really need to do is to have their dogs licensed, innoculated for rabies and keep them under control. Remember, all dogs six months of age or older must be licensed. A license is an inexpensive means to identify your dog if it should stray. It also shows you care for your pet.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
By LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHEN THE LORD GOES BEFORE YOU

July 9, 1989

Background Scripture: Judges 4 through 5.

Devotional Reading: Psalms 1.

One gets the very distinct impression that leaders were scarce among the Israelites during the period of the Judges. When I read this book it appears that the people wanted to be left alone so that they could pursue their own interests. There were only two circumstances under which they seemed to desire leadership: (1) when they needed someone to adjudicate disputes between them and their neighbors, and (2) when they were threatened by their enemies.

So Judges 5 opens with Deborah sitting under her palm tree acting as a magistrate in disputes between various citizens. Why a woman in an era when men almost totally dominated public affairs? Why this particular woman Deborah? From what we know of these times -- and for thousands of years following -- it seems safe to say that men normally would have allowed no woman to exercise authority in the public domain. If Deborah was acknowledged as Israel's only temporal ruler, it could only have been because the people were certain that God had picked Deborah for her leadership role. He had endowed her with the rare gift of prophecy. As such, she seemed to be so much closer to God and his ways than anyone else in the kingdom. When she delivered her judicial judgements, it was as if God himself were speaking to the people of Israel. So, when she sends for Barak, she tells him: "The Lord, the God of Israel commands you" (4:6).

THE RELUCTANT LEADER

Barak has already been assured by Deborah that God will give their enemies into their hands. But rather than act on the assurance given him, Barak seeks reassurance. Told to gather his troops to Mount Tabor, Barak wants to be assured that God will go with him. Since Deborah is God's representative, he bargains with her: "If you will go with me, I will go; but if you will not go with me, I will not go."

You and I might think that Barak was quite justified in getting this extra assurance from Deborah, but it appears that Deborah regards his request as a breach of faith. This breach of faith is not serious enough to spoil God's plans, but it will have one negative consequence for Barak: "the road on which you are going will not lead to your glory, for the Lord will sell Sisera into the hands of a woman" (4:9). In other words, because he did not trust God's assurance, he would not receive the glory for this great victory over Sisera. This prophecy was fulfilled in 4:17-24 when Jael, the wife of Heber, kills Sisera while he is sleeping.

900 CHARIOTS

When Deborah agrees to go with Barak, they both go off to the battlefield at Kedesh. Victory seems impossible because Sisera, the opposing general, commands an army with 900 chariots. The Israelites who had not yet learned to work with iron, had no chariots. But the choice of Kedesh was an inspired one, for here in the marshy land the chariots would get bogged down and lose much of their effectiveness.

So, in a moment of great need, God called to two people to work together to accomplish something that seemed utterly beyond possibility. Deborah, a woman gifted by God, is able to utilize the talents of Barak, a man who is able, but reluctant. And, although their task seemed quite impossible, because they were willing to heed God's call and work together, His will was done through them.

When the Lord goes before us, we are called to follow.

ORTHENE® Tobacco Insect Spray is tops with tobacco growers because it gives the tough insect control needed to deliver top quality leaf. Yet its low mammalian toxicity means it's less hazardous to workers than many other tobacco insecticides.

ORTHENE knocks out insects on contact, then keeps working from within the plant to stop damage from those pests that can be so hard on young plants, like flea beetles, cutworms and green peach aphids. Unlike other tobacco insecticides, ORTHENE even controls the tobacco aphid—a major insect problem.

ORTHENE: The No. 1 insecticide from plant bed to harvest.

Yet, while it gives powerful protection, ORTHENE is safer to use and safer for the environment. Even while riding transplant equipment, there's no need to wear goggles or special protective clothing. When used as a foliar spray, ORTHENE's toxicity is so low, workers can get back into the field as soon as the spray has dried, not two days later.

ORTHENE—the choice of more tobacco growers than any other insecticide for full season insect control.

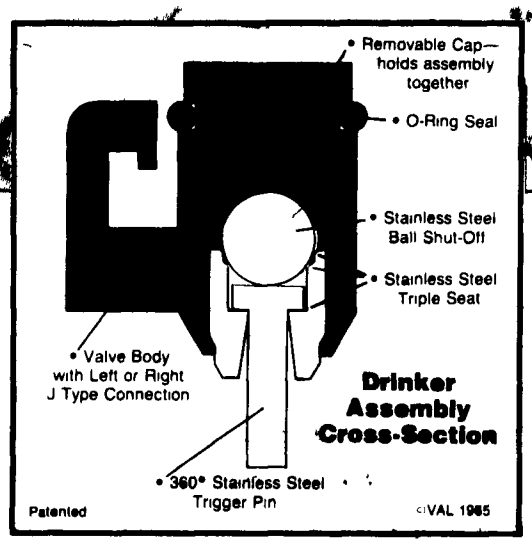
POULTRY FLOOR WATERING SYSTEM FOR BROILERS, BREEDERS, TURKEYS OR DUCKS



• Removable Cap—holds assembly together
• O-Ring Seal
• Stainless Steel Ball Shut-Off
• Stainless Steel Triple Seat
• Valve Body with Left or Right J Type Connection
• 360° Stainless Steel Trigger Pin
Drinker Assembly Cross-Section
Patented
©VAL 1985

NIPPLE DRINKER FEATURES

- Day-old birds can activate the valve from any side, any angle. (Mini drinkers required only if birds have been debeaked day-old.)
- Triple stainless steel valve seat made to precision specifications. No rubber seats to replace. Drinker operates on low ¼ - lb. pressure. Minimizes wet litter problems.
- Each nipple can serve 15 broilers, 10 heavy breeders or 8 turkeys.
- Drinker mounts on water line saddle by means of a "J" flange. Easy assembly and easy replacement.
- Drinker is easy to take apart & re-assemble. All parts are accessible and removable by simply pulling the cap out of the body.
- New Mini-Trough Drinker available for day old debeaked birds. Attaches to Nipple Floor Watering System, and remains through grow-out period. There is no need to remove the mini-trough between flocks.

SYSTEM FEATURES

- Water is always accessible, and always clean. The system is completely enclosed. Nipples are self cleaning, and they do not collect dirt. Since the nipple "washes" every time it is triggered, it does not get clogged by feed or feather dust
- Drier litter is maintained because of the reliable triple seal and low water pressure. There is less spillage and no squirting with this low pressure (¼ lb. or less) watering system.
- The pressure regulator (30VVR332) can provide and maintain a uniform ¼ lb. pressure for the entire length of a 500 ft ¾ inch plastic water pipe.
- Inspection and maintenance are easy. If a nipple needs replacement, simply turn to disengage the "J" flange and pull the unit out of the "saddle" or pipe connector. The new nipple may be inserted and locked in place by turning to engage the "J" flange. There are no threaded parts, clips or screws.
- Other maintenance tasks are as easy. Leveling may be done by means of adjustment straps on the winch cables. There are no cups, troughs or founts to clean
- Simple installation for floor systems. Plastic water pipe is clamped to 1" conduit sections, coupled together for continuous support Conduit is suspended from winch system at 12' (max.) intervals. The ¾ " plastic water pipe clamps to conduit ine every 24".

Acres Cattle Update: Live cattle futures futures closed from 78 to 128 points higher while feeders closed from 5 lower to 27 higher on the front option. Today's session was extremely volatile with August trading in a 148 point range. Weakness this morning was tied to follow through selling from Monday's close and continued concerns over sluggish boxed beef movement and fed cattle sales. Prices were mostly lower midday with the unexpected burst in buying catching many participants by surprise. Some support was tied to USDA reports of active fed sales at steady to $ .50 higher levels. Further pressure this morning was tied to limit gains in the corn pit and spillover from the hog pig.

CME FEEDER SETTLEMENT PRICE: Unquoted

NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: CASH PRICES - steady to weak FUTURES - steady to mixed.

Acres Hog Update: Live hogs closed from 52 higher on the June to limit lower on the August option while pork bellies settled limit lower on the front four options. Follow through sales from yesterday's limit losses started the session sharply lower with further pressure attributed to limit gains in the corn. Additio nal pressure was attributed to weaker cash markets coupled with the prospects for additional weakening this week in response to seasonal trends. July closed out today's session at only a 2 point loss with losses pared by the discount to cash. Continued long liquidation in response to the USDA Hog and Pig report plagued the pork bellies with limit losses.

Newspaper Bedding Makes Dollars

then spread on the fields.

Further research at Penn State has shown that there is a very low concentration of heavy metals. PSU researchers found there was a higher level of heavy metals in the manure from straw bedding than in the manure from newsprint.

In other studies it was shown that mastistis bacteria grew slower in kiln-dried sawdust and in newspaper than in other types of bedding.

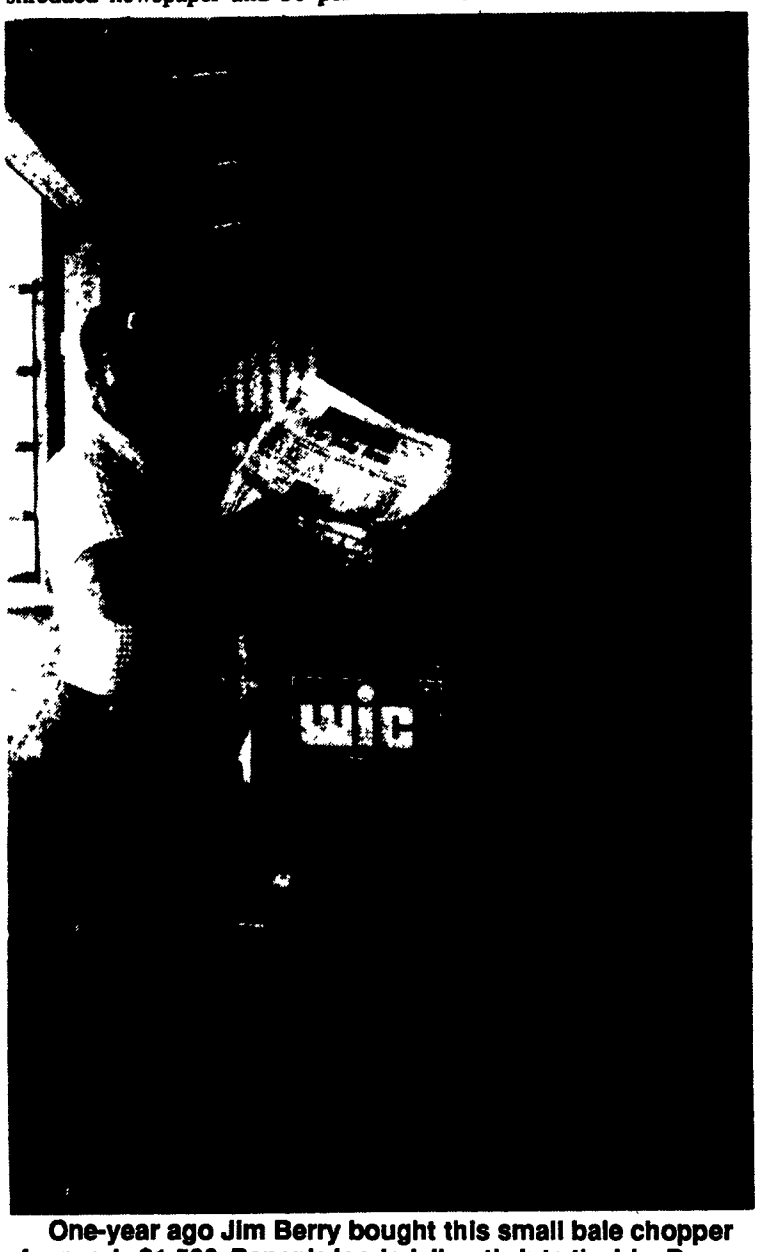
"Straw doesn't keep the cows as dry as the newspaper," said Berry. "Newspaper really soaks it up."

Berry prefers a mix of newspaper bedding and straw or corn fodder. Bedding which is 70 percent shredded newspaper and 30 percent corn fodder or straw or some other material works best for Berry.

"Where I used four bales of straw, now I use newspaper and one bale of straw. And if you are looking at $100 a ton for straw or prices are high for sawdust that's a big savings," explained Berry.

"In my pens and freestalls I like to blow in the newspaper and then blow in corn fodder or straw on top of it. Then when the cows walk on it they mix it up," said Berry.

For $1,500 Berry purchased a small bale chopper. Newspapers (newspapers only, no magazines) are dropped directly into the bin and in a few minutes thirty stalls are covered with a thick, fluffy dry bedding.



One-year ago Jim Berry bought this small bale chopper for nearly $1,500. Paper is loaded directly into the bin. Berry prefers a mix of 70 percent paper to 25 percent straw or fodder. The mix of other bedding material helps to keep the fluffy bedding in its place in the bed.

Although other types of paper have been tested for bedding there are some problems. Magazines, especially high-gloss magazines have a higher residue of heavy metals and trace elements.

There is also the problem of staples found in some magazines and cardboard. For information on using other materials such as Xerox paper and computer paper contact your local county extension agent.

Berry has found that the mix of newspaper with other materials makes the bedding less fluffy and keeps it in place. Fluffy bedding has tendency to not stay in the beds. This is the only disadvantage of the newsprint Berry has found.

Recycling Newspapers Benefits Everyone

Mandatory recycling in some communities has increased interest in newsprint for bedding in animal agriculture. Recycling newspapers helps farmers by providing a low-cost bedding while it relieves the overburdened landfills from thousands of tons of paper.

Pennsylvania Act 101 of 1988, The Municipal Waste Planning, Recycling and Waste Reduction Act, requires 407 Pennsylvania municipalities to recycle. Communities gearing up to meet this requirement usually include paper as part of their recycling program. These communities as well as communities in several other states requiring recycling programs have placed huge quantities of paper on the market. Presently many recycling coordinators are looking for new uses of this material.

According to the Department of Environmental Resources Bureau of Waste Management, the average Pennsylvania family of four produces about three tons of garbage per year. At this rate the Commonwealth's 75 landfills will be filled to capacity less than five years.

A Snyder County dairyman who has used paper bedding for eight years reports he uses 300-400 pounds per day for 170 free stalls housing his herd (2-3 pounds per animal per day).

At a rate of 2-3 pounds per day, if all dairy and beef producers in the Commonwealth recycled newspaper for bedding it would utilize only one-third of the states total of 3.5 million tons of used newsprint.

(Turn to Page A22)

Jim Berry loads the small bale chopper with newspaper and blows plenty of clean, dry, fluffy bedding into his freestall area in minutes. Berry is anxious to use more newspaper for bedding, but needs a steady supply of newspaper.

Chopping paper to this size makes it easily dissolved in the manure system and spreads well in the field.

Interested In Newspaper Bedding?

Farmers interested in recyling newspaper for bedding should contact their county extension agent. Agents can discuss use and preparation of newsprint.

Contact local solid waste officials. They have a large source of newspaper available for recycling and the newsprint may be available free of charge. However, the farmer may incur costs for local hauling.

Also, recycling centers may shred newspapers and offer bales for a small fee. Although some commercial recycling centers no longer accept newspapers for recycling because there has been no outlet for them, if they know there is a market for them they may be able to provide a collection and processing point for newsprint recycling. They can be found in the yellow pages of your telephone book under 'recycling'.

According to county extension recommendations, strips 8-10 inches long and about 1/4" to 3/4" wide work best. Longer strips track or move too much with animal movement, while shorter ones pose a blowing problem in the bedded area.

Heavy-duty paper shredders are available for use by paper processing centers. If further processing of these bales is needed small bale busters or shredders, as used for straw or corn fodder, may be employed at the farm.

Bale choppers can cost between $1,500 and $5,500. If necessary, forage harvestors may be used at the farm to prepare newspapers for bedding with some modifications to produce bedding of desirable proportions.

For further information on recycling newspapers for bedding contact your county's recycling coordinators or the one closest to you:

Now There's A Farmer In Your Area Who Can Make Any Business Loan The Bank Can.

Since 1917, farmers have taken kindly to Farm Credit because we're owned and controlled by people who really understand your business.

Farmers. Just like yourself. Thing was, we didn't exactly lay out a Sunday dinner spread of loans. Our menu was limited, and we knew it.

So recently we overhauled our lending system. We now offer competitive rates and options for loans we never could offer before.
Adjustable rate mortgages.
Revolving lines of credit.
Variable and fixed rate loans.
Terms of 30 days to 30 years. There's even a variety of services including insurance plans.

Some things do remain the same, however. The Farm Credit loan officer you talk to still makes most of the decisions.

And chances are he can do it faster than most bankers can say "bureaucracy."

So think about this for a moment. Who would you rather deal with for your next loan? A banker who merely wants your business. Or a farmer who knows it.

Nobody knows the field better.

Century Farm Families Honored By Department

HARRISBURG — Twenty-seven Pennsylvania farm families have been added to the history book, receiving designation recently as Pennsylvania Century Farms.

The farms were honored by the Department of Agriculture during the second quarter of 1989 for owning farms that have remained in the same family for at least 100 consecutive years. Since the program began in 1976, 1,365 farms have received the designation.

"Our farm families are the keystone of our state's economy," Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff said. "These families have worked very hard to make agriculture the Number 1 industry in Pennsylvania. The Century Farms Program allows us to recognize their dedication and honor them for this achievement.

The Secretary urged other farm families who might qualify for the designation to call the Department's toll-free number, 1-800/AG-PENNA, for additional information and an application.

Scott Fulmer's Westmoreland County farm has actually been in the family for more than 200 consecutive years. His farm still contains 110 of the original 245 acres purchased in 1785 by John Milligan II. Four generations of Milligan's descendants currently live in 10 houses on his original tract.

Pennsylvnaia's first governor, Thomas Mifflin, appointed Milligan as Justice of the Peace for Westmoreland County, which encompassed all of the country west of the Allegheny Mountains in the 1790s. The first apple butter reportedly was made on the Milligan Farm in 1805, boiled in the distillery's tub.

The newest Century Farms are:

Newspaper Bedding

Certainly not all livestock owners will switch to paper bedding. While the number of dairymen and beef and poultry producers using newspaper for bedding is growing, it is a small percentage of the total number of potential users. Recycling coordinators must make newsprint accessible and free or cheap.

Since cows are in rural areas and most people are in urban areas of the state, county coordinators must work together to get paper supplies from cities to rural areas.

Bill Adams, Pennsylvania Farmers Association director of natural resources has had reports from many farmers who are using newsprint for bedding.

"The farmers I have talked to have said they wouldn't be doing it if it weren't saving them money. Many have modified equipment to handle the shredding," said Adams. "Our main concern was the health consequence, but none have been reported."

According to Adams, many farmers simply let their neighbors know they are recycling newspapers. The farmer establishes a drive-by drop-off point which provides a constant supply of newsprint for the farmer.

Berry said his biggest problem is not having a constant supply of newspapers to bed his herd of nearly 60 Holsteins. He uses paper bedding mostly in his free stall area and in his pens. A good deal on 16 ton of peanut hulls will ease Berry's bedding costs for awhile, but he says he would use more paper bedding if he had a constant supply.

He plans to contact the Boy Scouts in the Lebanon area. Although Boy Scout troops no longer collect newspapers, there are troops in many areas which have mountains of newspapers left over. They are anxious to transport them to be rid of the newspapers. Making some telephone calls to local troop leaders or the district executive directors can put the farmer in touch with a large supplier.

Editor's Note: For more information on newspaper bedding and recycling see Randy Wells' story, B-2.

Rain Favors

The resulting damage appears as long, white streaks on leaves where green tissue has been removed.

In small grains, where slug damage is unusual, this damage can resemble that made by larvae of the cereal leaf beetle (CLB). Some heavily infested fields appear frosted because of the extensive removal of green tissue.

Dr. Byers investigated a wheat field on Maryland's eastern shore that had suffered heavy damage from slugs. We examined a wheat field in northern York County that had extensive CLB-like damage -- the field harbored an astonishingly high slug population.

The Pennsylvania Crop Management Association reports severe damage to corn fields in Fulton, Bedford, and Lycoming counties. Strawberry growers also have had a tough time with slugs this spring.

Wisconsin Creamery, Two Employees Sentenced In Fraud Case

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A Green Bay, Wisc., firm and two of its employees were sentenced late last month for defrauding the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation, said USDA's Deputy Inspector General Leon Snead.

Snead said that Lov-It Creamery, which repackaged CCC bulk butter, was ordered by a U.S. District Judge to make restitution of $1 million, pay a fine of $100,000, and barred the firm from performing CCC butter processing contracts for two years. Roger L. Jahnke, 44, a supervisor at the creamery, was sentenced to three years in prison, fined $75,000 and ordered to make restitution in the amount of $50,000. His nephew, David M. Jahnke, 27, maintenance foreman, was placed on probation for five years and fined $5,000.

The sentences resulted from guilty pleas entered by Lov-It Creamery and the Jahnkes in February following their indictment for conspiring to steal butter intended for USDA commodity programs including school lunch and emergency food assistance.

The indictment charged that Lov-It employees altered machinery used in the repackaging process to short-weight the CCC butter by an average of one-pound per 36-pound case. The "skimmed" butter was diverted for use in Lov-It Creamery's commercial operations.

From 1979 to 1985, Lov-It Creamery repackaged more than 117-million pounds of bulk butter into one-pound packages for CCC, said Snead.

Ayrshire Host Family Wanted

RICHLAND (Bucks Co.) — An exciting opportunity exists for an Ayrshire dairy farm family to host a young man from France as part of a French non-profit exchange program involving agricultural students and young farmers between France and the United States.

Alain Bouget, 23, is requesting to live and work on an American Ayrshire dairy farm for eight months beginning July 1989 before attending the University of Minnesota in March 1990 for a three month study period in agriculture.

Alain, who was raised on a dairy and crops farm in a large dairy area in western France has received a scholarship from his local government to study the Ayrshire breed in the United States. Since there are no Ayrshires in France, this would be an excellent opportunity to introduce this young dairyman to the Ayrshire breed. The result might be that Alain would introduce and promote Ayrshires in France.

For more information on hosting Alain please contact:

The new Pennsylvania Agricultural Commodity Marketing Assn. Inc., has purchased exclusive, non-competing rights in cash grain and feed stuff marketing, forward contracts and hedging. PFA plans to continue with a marketing cooperative that will have special emphasis in marketing education.

"Our goal and intention is to keep everything running as smoothly as possible in the transition," Orndorff said. "We have people who rely on us in the cash market as well as the futures market. So we can't skip a beat in what we do."

To accomplish this smooth transition, PFA has agreed to maintain their licensing as a Futures Commission Merchant until August to allow Ordnorff and his investors to meet the requirements of regulators and become licensed. The contracts written with PFA's branch before the buy-out by Orndorff become the responsibility of the new PACMA as well as any new business from PFA members.

PFA President Keith Eckel said "PFA extends its best wishes to the new agricultural marketing brokerage, PACMA Inc. It will carry on the mission to fulfill a need long recognized by our members for expanded marketing options and increased profit opportunities. We encourage our members to utilize this service for their feed purchasing and livestock and grain marketing requirements."

The new organization with Orndorff, John Niesley, secretary/treasurer, Richard Cole, vice president, grain merchandising and Mike Pflieger, vice president, transporation, have purchased the old Pennfield mill in Palmyra and plan to move from Camp Hill to the new location on Monday.

"The mill facilities gives us one more tool in marketing," Orndorff said. "We have a very full service agriculture brokerage now with the added dimention of rail transportation and destination storage."

PACMA did have barge transportation into western Pennsylvania but the new PACMA hopes to be able to deal in smaller quantities when the market presents itself. They will look at soybean meal, gluten feed, cotton products and maybe fertilizer to bring to the new facilities. They plan to be able to transload from the railroad cars to trucks for direct distribution.

In addition to farmers, PACMA has developed a large commercial trade. "The commercial businesses buy from us because of our experience in cash and futures," Orndorff said. "We are able to put together buys originating in the Midwest and give very good service to the commercial people. They really buy our expertise.

"With the advent of PACMA getting into the hard-core nuts and bolts of marketing, in the trenches buying and selling commodities, we have brought to Pennsylvania ag marketing another level of competition. Over the years, we have helped to push purchased commodity prices lower because of the added competition we bring to the market. "We have kept the market honest," Orndorff said.

PACMA had $22 million in sales last year. The selling price was not disclosed but the principles in the company raised $60,000 to buy the common stock. Other investors took short term debentures for temporary seed money and a Dauphin Deposit has provided a line of credit. In August or September the corporation will make a limited offering of preferred stock so they can convert the debentures to raise $250,000.

"We are adequately funded with our line of credit," Orndorff said. "And we own the building."

Orndorff became acquainted with PFA and PACMA when he did basis work for them from his Philadelphia office of Clayton Brokerage Firm, St. Louis, MO. He was PFA's retail broker for several years. When the farm organization wanted to expand into marketing, they asked Orndorff to come work as their market analysts. He joined PACMA in 1985 and helped to introduce new products like distillers and cottonseed into Pennsylvania in large quanities.

While other jobbers traditionally provide services that PACMA Inc. intend to offer, no one else has all the services under one roof. "We offer a whole package--cash sales, delayed pricing, basis contracts, forward pricing contracts, which all lead up to the individual hedging arrangement," Orndorff said. "It's like one stop shopping.

"We can price corn and lock in hog prices and trade those margins,"Orndorff said. "That's a unique service. And by fall we hope to put a marketing management newsletter together that will tie all our services together."

Orndorff said he came to the farm cooperative because he believed in the concept of farmers being involved in marketing. "The book said you couldn't make good marketing decisions from the cooperative base," Orndorff said. "I wanted to prove that idea wrong, but I have concluded they may be right. Because of the nature of this business, decisions need to be made quickly and there isn't enough time to take the decision out to the membership for approval."

"I have concluded it is hard to mix the two," Orndorff said. "I believe we will be able to do more, working in association with the farm organization and not as part of it."

Mike Orndorff is market analysts for new commodity organization.

Groundwater Concerns Farmers Nationwide

NEWARK, De. — "Groundwater quality is of growing interest to farmers in all parts of the country," says Tom Williams, University of Delaware Extension specialist in agricultural engineering.

Williams was referring to a study of groundwater contamination conducted by the Agricultural Law and Policy Institute (ALPI), at the University of Minnesota. ALPI is a private, nonprofit, educational organization interested in the development of agricultural policy.

ALPI studied five counties determined to be at risk for groundwater contamination from fertilizers and agricultural chemicals including Lancaster County, Pa.; Jackson County, Fla.; Portage County, Wis.; Stanislaus County, Calif.; and Cherokee County, Iowa.

One of the key findings of the study is that the majority of farmers in all counties agreed that federal dollars should be used to fund research on ways to reduce chemical and fertilizer use. Farmers also supported federal funding of technical assistance to carry out this goal.

The study also found that 40 percent to 56 percent of farmers favored state restrictiion of specified fertilizer application within an area at high risk for groundwater contamination. In addition, between 39 percent and 62 percent of surveyed farmers also felt that state governments should be able to restrict herbicide, insecticide and/or nematocide application.

Between 80 percent and 95 percent of the surveyed farmers agreed there was a need for regular testing of well water in high-risk areas. The majority of farmers in the five counties agreed that reducing the infiltration of fertilizers or agricultural chemicals into groundwater was desirable.

Williams says the study indicates a willingness of farmers to cooperate with regulations for chemical and fertilizer use. Between 65 percent and 80 percent of the farmers did indicate that they thought farming with reduced chemical inputs would affect profitability. However, between 39 percent and 62 percent of the farmers said they had already found ways to reduce fertilizer, manure and ag chemical use and yet maintain economic viability.

Almost half of the U.S. population depends on groundwater to supply drinking water. In fact, 75 percent of U.S. cities and 97 percent of rural areas depend on groundwater as their water source.

"If you live in a rural area and rely on a private well for your drinking water, have it tested at least once a year for bacteria and nitrates," Williams says. "Water testing is available through your county health units. Don't delay, test today."

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Jorgenson Explains New Animal Model

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The Animal Model and its new terminology will go into effect with the United States Department of Agriculture's July 1989 genetic evaluations. Made possible by recent advances in computer technology, the results will be the most complete and accurate evaluation system for production ever used. The program is used to identify superior cow families for herd improvement through breeding.

Adams County dairymen were introduced to the Animal Model by Kevin Jorgenson, a Summer Intern with the Holstein Freisian Association of America when he spoke at a twilight meeting on Thursday, June 22, 1989. The meeting was held at the farm of Jeffrey and Mary Kay Roche, 245 Forest Drive, New Oxford.

The Roches' maintain a 70-cow milking herd of registered Holsteins with production averaging about 19,500 pounds of milk. "Our goal is to build a breeding herd and to do a lot of showing," said Jeff, who added that flushing special cows for embryo transplanting has already begun.

Jorgenson was the official in a judging contest which featured three cow classes. Joy Hess of Gettysburg was the junior division winner, Christine Wood of Littlestown and Kevin Holtzinger of East Berlin tied for first place in the senior division. Prizes for the winners and additional door prizes were provided by four artificial breeding firms serving the industry in this area.

Refreshments were served by Karen Hobaugh, chair of the Adams County Dairy Promotion Committee, assisted by Stacy Harlow, Dairy Princess.

Jeffrey King, President of the Adams County Holstein Association, urged the dairy farmers to make reservations by July 7 for the Dairy Tour which will be held on Wednesday, July 26. Departing the North Gettysburg Shopping Center at 8:00 a.m., the group will tour in-county Brown Valley Farms; Kehr Acres; Jo-Bo Farm; Bermudian Creek and Beaver Run Farms. Lunch will be obtained at the York Springs Firehall.

Tour reservations may be made with any of the following directors: Jeffrey King; Robert Clowney; Vincent Lobaugh; Michael Todt; Steve Wood; Adam Lobaugh; Josie Hess; Jeffrey Roche or Guy Sprague.

Beef And Veal Ambassadors

tion beef queen, agrees. "It's up to us to straighten out the misconception about beef and veal," she said. "Veal is a relatively new industry. And the only thing a lot of people know is what the animal rights groups have said. All we can do is tell what actually happens on the farm and let the public know the facts. But it's hard to change minds when they are emotional."

These good-will ambasadors travel across the state to give cooking demonstrations and answer questions. Some questions are serious. For example, the European ban on US meats because of the use of "hormones." Other questions are more humorous because some people think farmers feed concrete to their livestock because they see salt blocks out in the meadow.

Of course, a lot of people like to eat beef and veal and realize these products are good for them.

Under the banner "Beef Is Back," the beef industry's consumer information program presents positive publicity about beef to help to inform consumer thought-leaders who make news about beef--food editors, news reporters, nutrition scientists, and health professionals. The National Beef Council reports that since January of 1988, more than 1500 positive stories about beef have appeared in the print media with a total circulation of more than 173 million.

The emphasizes centers on several key messages:

—Beef is leaner than before.

—Moderate portions of beef deliver significant amounts of nutrients, especailly, iron needed by women of child-bearing age.

—Beef has the same amount of cholesterol, ounce for ounce, as chicken and fish.

—Beef belongs in a healthful diet.

The program strongly emphasis the industry's commitment to create a flavorful and convenient product that contributes to a healthful diet.

Barry Sands and Kelly Lynn Mankamyer answer questions about beef and veal and give samples to shoppers at Willow Valley Square.

And for the local presentations, Sands and Mankamyer wanted Willow Valley Square to receive credit for their cooperation with the program and the special meat display they put together in their grocery store during the three day event.

Lancaster Acreage Reduction Reported

Lancaster County Producers enrolled 102 farms in the Acreage Reduction Program with crop acreage bases totaling 6,287 acres, reported Ray Brubaker, County Executive Director of the Lancaster County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The acres enrolled represent 23% of the total base acres established in the county. Because of the program, 561 acres will be taken out of production and will be maintained in a conservative use.

Nationally, producers enrolled 168.1 million acres of 76.3 percent of the total crop acreage base established for feed grains, wheat, and other program crops. Figures are from recently released U.S. Department of Agriculture data on preliminary results of the 1989 signup for program crops which ended April 14, 1989.

The number of farms enrolled is down by 32% here from last year and the required percentage of the bases to be reduced is down to 10% instead of the previous 20%.

Brubaker said that the reduction in the number of enrolled farms may be attributed to factors such as reduced grain supplies, higher market prices, and smaller loan and payment rates.

Participating producers are eligible for loans and purchases and deficiency payments on enrolled crops. Based on projected deficiency payment rates, payments to Pennsylvania producers are estimated at $437,000. Forty percent of the projected deficiency payment could be requested by the producer at time of signup.

Forage Sorghum Useful As Dairy Feed

NEWARK, DE — Wet weather and late plantings have combined to reduce the acreage of corn this year in favor of other crops such as soybeans and sorghum.

"Sorghum can be a safe and acceptable alternative to corn for feeding dairy cows," says Dr. George F.W. Haenlein, University of Delaware Extension dairy specialist. "We have done much research with sorghum at the University of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station. As a grain alternative, it is becoming part of the poultry feeding program. As silage, it will outyield corn in tonnage and energy in droughty summers, and it has a much wider harvest window."

Certain types of sorghum have some drawbacks, Haenlein says. Forage sorghums don't stand up as well as corn does during late summer storms. And the bird-susceptible varieties are popular with the hordes of blackbirds that plunder crops before harvest. But the bird-safe, black-seed forage varieties, though not as palatable for poultry because of the tannin content in the seeds, are easily accepted by cows.

Forage sorghum silage is at least as palatable as corn because of its higher initial sugar content, Haenlein says. Protein content is comparable to corn, but fiber content is higher.

"A farmer with a low milkfat test because of fiber shortage in his ration would do well to feed sorghum silage," the specialist says. "An additional plus is that sorghum silage won't contain prussic acid poison if harvested above 18 to 24 inches in height and harvested either before a frost or at least five to seven days after a frost."

Haenlein cautions that calories and digestibility are lower in sorghum than in corn silage, therefore more energy supplements are needed when feeding high-producing dairy cows.

"With the advantages of sorghum," Haenlein says, "dairy farmers will profit by including it in their annual planting and feeding program."

FARM MANAGEMENT

BY JOHN J. DEFASSIO
Multi-county Farm Management Agent
Penn State Cooperative Extension

Penn State Farm Management Agents are taking an in-depth look at Labor Management, dividing the subject into eleven articles. This is the second installment of the series.

There are only two types of tax laws that apply to agricultural labor: Employment taxes and Unemployment taxes. That sounds simple enough until you realize that federal, state and local taxing agencies all enforce laws under these two categories.

Federal Employment Taxes (FICA)

Social Security tax is authorized through the Federal Insurance Contribution Act (FICA). The tax applies to farmers employing more than $2500 of agricultural labor from all employees during one calendar year, OR who pay $150 or more in cash wages to an individual employee during a calendar year.

What is Taxable

The tax rate is applied to the wage base, the first $48,000 of cash wages paid in 1989. The wage base will be adjusted automatically as the average wage level changes. All base wages paid to employees are subject to the tax, including wages paid to the employer's spouse. Children of the employer who are under age 18 are exempt from Social Security or FICA tax. Employer's spouse and under age 21 childrens' wages became subject to this tax in 1988 and later years.

How FICA Tax is Collected

The tax rate for 1989 is 7.51 percent and for 1990 the rate will be 7.65 percent. This rate applies to the gross cash wages paid. The tax is imposed upon both the employer and the employee. The employer is responsible for collecting the employee's share of the tax and remitting a total tax of 15.02 percent to the IRS. The tax is required to be deposited at any authorized financial institution within 15 days when the total liability at the end of any month reaches $500. If the monthly liability equals $3000 or more the total tax must be deposited within three banking days of the end of any eight-monthly period for which the accumulated liability exceeds $3000. The eight-monthly periods end on the 3rd, 7th, 11th, 15th, 19th, 22nd, 25th and the last day of each month.

What Form to File

Agricultural employers are required to file form 943 annually to report the total liability for federal employment taxes. The form must be filed with the IRS not later than January 31 of the following year. Total taxable wages are reported, tax liability is calculated and total tax deposits are accounted for. Any undeposited liability is due with the return. Separate penalties are imposed for failure to deposit taxes on time and failure to file a tax form on time. In addition to FICA tax, form 943 is also used to report any federal income tax withheld. Farmers are not required to withhold federal income tax from an agricultural employee. However, both the employee and employer may agree to withhold income taxes from wages paid.

More Forms

Farmers must also complete a form W-2 for each employee. The W-2 reports the total compensation and the taxable FICA wages paid. The employer must also report any and all taxes withheld from wages on form W-2. Form W-2 must be distributed to the employees by January 31 of the following year. Form W-3 is required for the employer to transmit all W-2 forms to the Social Security Administration by February 28 of the following year.

State Employment Taxes

Pennsylvania imposes an income tax on wages earned in the state. The tax must be collected by the employer if the employee is subject to federal withholding. The tax withheld, if less than $300, is deposited each quarter with the State of PA by using form PA501. If the tax withheld is $300 or more it is deposited monthly and a quarterly reconciliation form is required. In addition an annual form PAW-3R must be filed along with a copy of each employees form W-2. The PAW3-R acts as a reconciliation form and a transmittal form for the individual W-2 reports.

Local Employment Taxes

Some local governments have established an Occupational Privilege Tax. This is usually a flat rate of $10 for each employee who earns $1000 or more during the year. Many local governments also impose an earned income tax on wages earned within their jurisdiction. Employers are usually required to withhold these taxes and remit the tax to the local tax collector on a quarterly basis. Each local government establishes its own rules for withholding and remitting these taxes. Please check with your local Earned Income Tax Collector for more information.

Federal Unemployment Taxes (FUTA)

The Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA) requires farmers to pay FUTA only when cash wages of $20,000 or more are paid in any calendar quarter OR if 10 or more workers are employed for some portion of a day during each of 20 different calendar weeks during the current or preceding year. Wages paid to the employer's spouse, parents, or the employer's OWN children under age 21 are NOT subject to FUTA tax. FUTA is a tax on the employer and CANNOT be deducted from the employee's wage.

How FUTA Tax is Collected

A tax rate of 6.2 percent is charged on the first $7000 of cash wages paid. If an employer has filed and paid all state unemployment taxes in a timely manner a credit of 5.4 percent of the taxable wages is granted. This credit yields a net rate of .8 percent. A deposit must be made of the total tax liability at any authorized financial institution by the end of

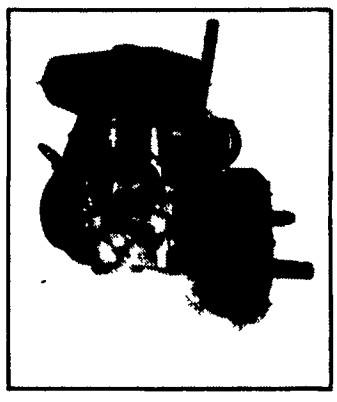
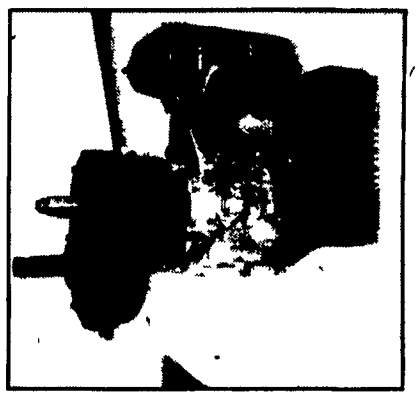
8½ HP Kawasaki Gasoline Engine With Clutch & 6 to 1 Reduction





Specially designed shaft to power hydraulic pumps, etc.

This unit is basically designed to transmit power from engine to power take off shaft equipment The reason for this design, an extra shaft is built into this unit so power can be transmitted to the hydraulic system by using belts and pulleys. This shaft is placed above the splined shaft, and runs hydraulic pump with or without power take off shaft in gear No need to take the rope rewind starter off to mount pulley on front of the engine. This simple design eliminates special machined pulley adaptors. Reduction housing and cover is a rugged cast iron construction. All shafts are of special selected steels and are heat treated and hardened at wear points. All ball and needle bearing construction for long life A heavy-duty ball-loc type clutch is used This unit has few moving parts, thus it should give many years of service. Clutch adjustments are made from the outside, (very simple)

A specially selected engine, the Kawasaki KF-82 8½ HP, is used for your convenience. The engine is also made with rugged construction, and has smooth operation. This engine has high torque at low RPMs, thus is well adapted to the clutch and reduction unit.

the month following the end of any calendar quarter in which the FUTA tax liability reaches $100. Form 940 is required annually, by January 31, for wages paid in the preceding year.

State Unemployment Tax

The Commonwealth of PA imposes an unemployment tax on agricultural employers who are subject to FUTA. The rate for an employer initially subject to the tax is 3.5 percent and applies to the first $8000 of wages paid to each employee. Experience ratings are earned after the initial year and can range from 1.5 percent to 9.7 percent. The tax is reported to the Bureau of Employment Security using form UC-2 and is due for wages paid during the calendar quarter on the last day of the following month. State Unemployment taxes apply to the employer and may NOT be deducted from an employees earnings.

Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show Is Largest In The East

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The largest dairy show east of the Mississippi opens its doors for the 26th time at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg September 24-29. The Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show affords dairy breeders and exhibitors the opportunity to compete with their national peers.

It is fitting for Pennsylvania to host a national dairy event, because the dairy industry is the leading segment of the state's number one agricultural industry.

Over 2,500 dairy cattle entries from 25 states and Canada competed in last year's show. Most of the exhibitors are expected to return with their prized cattle for a share of the $87,000 premiums and ribbons offered at this year's show.

Six breed shows, including four nationally sanctioned shows, highlight the week's activities. A Supreme Champion will be selected from among the six grand champion females. Special contests for young people, the future of the industry, are also on the All-American roster.

Four individual breed sales are slated for the week, as some of the state's finest animals go on the auction block.

Commercial exhibitors will display their newest innovations for the dairy industry throughout the week and a country craft market will feature the work of 100 artistic exhibitors.

All-American entries must be submitted by August 25. Call 717-787-2905 for a premium list and entry form, or write to Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show, Farm Show Complex, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

Admission and parking for the All-American are free. The show is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Industries Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the State Farm Show Commission.

Plushanski Heifer Tops Genesis 1989 Sale

ROCHESTER, Mn. — A Plushanski-bred heifer topped the 21st Century Genetics Genesis 89 cattle sale in Rochester, Mn., June 24.

Plushanski Rex Fame-ET, a yearling sired by 21H738 Lutz-Brookview Bell Rex-ET, bought $27,000. Consigned by Plushanski Farms, Kutztown, Fame was purchased by David, Patrick, Frank, Jr. and Gregory Bauer, Scandinavia, Wi.

Fame was one of two heifers selling over the $20,000 mark, out of 53 heifers and 11 cows sold. The heifers averaged $3,524 apiece while the cows brought an average of $2,882.

The average of the sale went over $3,400 for all animals. A crowd nearing 1,000 people attended the sale, preceded by a meal and open house at the cooperative's Stewartville, Mn., sampling sire facility.

21st Century Genetics support its confidence in the young animals by offering a conditional contract for bulls born to the heifers sold at Genesis 89.

Dr. Dave Selner, reading pedigrees from the auctioneers' box, announced the strength and depth of the maternal lines, as well as the individual heifers, merited the offer.

Going to the Tinkerbell Syndicate, Newton, Wi., for $21,500 was a June 1988 heifer sired by 21H1567 Arlinda Mellow-ET. Emerald-Acres-SA Tinkerbell-ET was consigned by Emerald Acres and Scott Armbrust, DePere, Wis.

The third-highest animal was also a heifer, sired by 21H990 Bossir Glen-Valley Starlite Al, "Big Al." Lylehaven-Mist Marlie, consigned by the Mist Syndicate, Montpelier, Vt., went to Joe Schott, Sheldon, Iowa, for $8,000.

Rex, gaining favor for production and show ring performance, sired 16 of the animals going before the gavel of Keith Stump. Obviously finding appreciation by bidders, the Rex heifers averaged $5,300.

High-ranking active or available sires well-represented at Genesis 89 were Mellow and "Big Al," both with 10 consignments and 21H1442 Sir C Valor with three.

Schott also bought, for $5,000 a choice of female embryos from the nation's top Predicted Difference - Dollar (PD$) value bull, 21H1800 Dixie-Lee Ivanhoe Henry. The embryo was offered by Henry's breeder, Boyd Brothers, Bolivar, Mo.

Rothrock Golden Holsteins, Kempton, sent two offerings to the sale. Rothrock Al Aurora, a Big Al milking daughter, went to Tony Bos, Mira Loma, Ca., for $4,500.

Rothrock Al Leila-ET, another Big Al milking daughter, brought $6,200, also from Bos.

The consignment of Richard Troutman and Sons and Gary Willier, Richland, sold for $1,500 to Swedeain, Ltd., Jamestown, N.Y. She is Oakenbound-W Hammond Falter-ET, a heifer from 21H1095 Top-Flite Hammond.

Harvestore Celebrates 40-Year Anniversary

DEKALB, Il. — The Harvestore structure, a landmark innovation that has helped to improve the efficiency of modern animal agriculture, was introduced 40 years ago this year. The anniversary was marked here on June 26 with a ceremonial cake-cutting at the headquarters of A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc.

The Harvestore system had its beginning during the final days of World War II, due to a chance remark by a farmer who was visiting the corporate headquarters of A.O. Smith Corportion in Milwaukee, WI. As he viewed one of the company's glass-fused-to-steel beer vats — a horizontal tank measuring 10½ ft. in diameter by 30 ft. long — the farmer observed that it if were turned up on end, the tank would make an excellent silo.

That comment came to the attention of Wesley G. Martin, a design engineer at A.O. Smith who had been given the assignment of developing new products for the peacetime markets ahead. He decided to investigate the idea.

Martin soon discovered that silos of that time had some shortcomings. These included feed spoilage on the top surfaces; pitting of the silo walls from silage acids; and winter freezing. The engineer realized that a product that could minimize these problems would be a boon to livestock farmers.

In 1945, with the war still on and steel allocations under strict control, Martin and his staff moved the beer tank from its proud place in the company museum to a Wisconsin farm. There, they did just what the farmer had suggested — turned it on end to create an experimental silo.

Even this model soon boasted features that resembled those of Harvestore structures today. For example, Martin realized that the tank could not be completely closed. If it were, the pressure changes within the structure due to temperature fluctuations could seriously damage it. To prevent that, the test structure was fitted with a flexible breather bag beneath the floor, allowing air to enter and exit the bag in response to pressure changes.

He also found that a two-way pressure relief valve was required to prevent damage to the breather bag and structure at those times when the capacity of the bags was exceeded. This valve allowed a small amount of air or gas to enter or exit the structure. The unit was also fitted with a bottom unloading device.

James C. Schaap

L.B. Smith

In the fall of 1945, the converted beer tank was filled with medium-moisture corn silage. When the first feed was unloaded it had a sweet odor and showed no sign of spoilage. The structure continued to unload even in the midst of a severe Wisconsin winter.

Martin knew he had a winning idea, and the following season several prototypes were put up for on-farm testing.

This Whitney Computer numerical control punch with Plasma ARC Torch punches holes in the raw steel sheet and cuts it to precise shapes. 400 different parts are made on this machine at Harvestore products' Dekalb plant.

By the end of 1948, the A.O. Smith engineers had developed a system that met all of their objectives. Measuring 14 ft. in diameter and 40 ft. tall, the structure was made of glass-fused-to-steel sheets, equipped with a breather bag system and pressure relief valve, and fitted with an unloader that clawed feed from storage with steel teeth.

The company ordered production of the first 100 Harvestore structures, and in 1949 80 of the innovative systems were purchased and put to work on dairy and livestock farms. The Harvestore® system era in animal agriculture had begun.

The anniversary event attracted Harvestore® system owners, independent dealers, civic leaders, and members of the press. Tours of the company's manufacturing facility, demonstrations of current products, and an informal luncheon took place. The event concluded with the ceremonial cutting of a 40th anniversary cake.

Speakers included L.B. (Ted) Smith, retired chairman of A.O. Smith Corporation, Harvestore Products' parent company, who recalled the early days of the Harvestore system. Also speaking were present top management of both companies, including Donald Dunaway, Senior Vice President of A.O. Smith Corporation, and James Schaap, President of A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc.

The first 80 Harvestore structures, measuring 14 and 17 ft. in diameter and 40 ft. high, were sold in 1949. Today, more than 75,000 structures have been installed across the United States and Canada, and the Harvestore® system plays a major role in efficient livestock production. The structures are used to preserve and store a wide variety of feeds, including medium-moisture forages such as haylage and cornlage and fermented high-moisture grains.

The original structures of 1949 are dwarfed by today's largest units, which range in size up to a nominal 31 ft. diameter by 89 ft. tall. The feed storage structures have also been joined by a full line of feed and manure handling equipment that includes batch mixers, conveyors, grain processors, slurry pumps, and the Slurrystore system family of liquid manure tanks. Glass-fused-to-steel structures are also produced for municipal and industrial applications such as holding drinking or waste water.

This old photograph shows an early Harvestore® structure in use on a Wisconsin dairy farm about 40 years ago. Many changes have come to agriculture since the innovative feed storage systems first appeared in 1949. Today, more than 75,000 Harvestore structures are in use around the world.

Berks Ag Land Preservation Meeting Set

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Agricultural Land Preservation Board will hold a public meeting to discuss the final draft of the county's proposed farmland preservation program, announced Board Chairman Warren Lamm. The purpose of the meeting will be to explain the purchase of development rights program, and how the new state law and state guidelines for farmland preservation interrelate with the county program.

"We have been working on this program for the past year, and have been writing policy and program drafts for the past six months," said Lamm. "With the enactment of Act 149 in December, 1988, the state's farmland preservation program to purchase development rights was set in gear. The act became effective on February 13, 1989. Now, we have reached the point where we are preparing to submit our program for purchasing development rights to the State Agricultural Land Preservation Board for their review and approval. Once the county program is approved, we can begin to accept applications from farmers who are interested in participating."

Lamm noted the July 12 public meeting will be an opportunity for farmers to learn more about the program. The public meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Berks County Agricultural Center, located near Leinbachs. It will begin at 8 p.m.

The Berks County Commissioners appointed the Agricultural Land Preservation Board last summer. Members include: Warren Lamm, chairman; Ernest Miller, vice chairman; George Moyer, Sheila Miller; Robert Ludgate; Robert Ziegenfus; Fred Eyrich; Vicki Kintzer; and Dwight Stoltzfus. The Commissioners recently hired a full-time staff person to administer the county farmland preservation program. Bernard Riley, a 1989 graduate of Kutztown University, became the Berks County farmland preservation specialist on June 1, 1989.

For more information on the program or the public meeting, contact Bernie Riley at the Extension Office, telephone 215-378-1327.

1988 Crop Wheat, Barley Producers To Receive 12-month 0/92 Payments

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will make about $2 million in 0/92 program payments to eligible 1988-crop wheat and barley producers, according to Acting CCC Executive Vice President Vern Neppl. These payments will be made in commodity certificates by USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service's county offices after July 14.

Eligible wheat and barley producers in the 0/92 program are assured the emergency compensation or 12-month "Findley" minimum payment rates shown in the following table:

	Wheat	Barley	Oats
	--dollars per bushel--
A. Total minimum payment rates	1.53	0.76	0.30
B. 5-month minimum payment rate	1.47	0.71	0.30
C. 12-month minimum payment Rate (line A minus line B)	0.06	0.05	0.00

CCC estimates payments to producers will be approximately $1 million each for wheat and barley. No payments are due oat producers.

Eligible wheat and barley producers received the five-month minimum 0/92 program payments with the deficiency payments made after the first five months of the applicable crop year. Wheat producers in the 0/92 program who elected to receive an advance of the "Findley" payment received that portion in December 1988.

Positioning In International Growth

BY CONGRESSMAN STEVE GUNDERSON
3rd District, Wisconsin

WASHINGTON, DC — A sense of optimism is in view for the United States' dairy industry, considering the growth potential for the U.S. in the international marketplace. Recent news by the USDA to pursue negotiations with the Soviet Union to sell the USSR butter, indicates the U.S. has enhanced its competitiveness in the world dairy market and is positioning itself to expand and capture an even greater share of international trade.

The recent successes of the U.S. dairy industry and estimated trends worldwide, could allow the U.S. to gain a stronger hold on the world dairy market. Domestic buyers of nonfat dry milk are actually finding themselves competing with foreign buyers for their needs.

World milk production was up slightly in 1988, even with the European Community's major policy-induced production decline. Total world dairy production is expected to increase about one percent in 1989, to 432 million metric tons. Consumption is expected to also take about a one percent increase during 19[illegible].

Our major competitor for the world dairy market share is the 12-national European Community. The international dairy market has been dominated for the last 20 years by the EC, but the EC's stronghold on the world export market is expected to decline 6% over the next year, down from 1.291 million metric tons of cheese, butter and nonfat dry milk outside of the 12-nation trade group.

One of the deciding factors that benefits U.S. market growth potential is the EC's supply quotas that were introduced in 1984. In 1987, production was cut by 6% and was expected to have an additional decline of 3% last year. The EC's share of world output has also declined, from 50% to 42%. As the EC continues to reduce its stocks of dairy commodities, these supply quotas make it difficult for the EC to meet increasing world market demands.

Some recent successes show the dairy industry in the United States is on the verge of gaining its international strength. We have made great gains in trying to take over the world market price for nonfat dry milk, and I'm convinced in the 1990's, the U.S. will be able to overtake cheese prices.

At the end of 1988, the U.S. price for nonfat dry milk ranged as much as 23-cents per pound under the world price. At the end of May this year, our domestic price of 84 to 89-cents is running even with the world trade price. The outlook for 1989 is for continued tightness in world supplies of nonfat dry milk, allowing the U.S. domestic prices to keep pace with rising world price levels.

As we hopefully continue to see trade barriers dropped in Japan, the U.S. will move into an increasing, energetic dairy market. Over the last year, Japan has increased imports of butter, cheese, and nonfat dry milk from 188,000 tons to 220,000 tons. Japan's imports for 1989 are expected to increase to 225,000 tons, with the U.S. picking up its fair share of that market.

What's so encouraging about the Japanese market is that they currently desire a higher butterfat content, good news for the U.S. dairy industry, where we have a butterfat problem.

The United States now has the Soviet Union seeking to negotiate a purchase of 30,000 metric tons of butter from our Commodity Credit Corporation stocks at world prices in cash. On Monday, the USDA gave approval for the Foreign Agricultural Service to negotiate a possible butter sale with the Soviets. Trade officials have said this is a hot, new market worth pursuing.

Further evidence of the U.S. growth potential is viewed by a competing country, New Zealand. In their eyes the U.S. is no longer insulated from the world dairy economy. They have said the U.S. needs "to grasp the opportunity current market conditions present and recognize that a more open and orderly basis for international dairy trade will serve its long-term interests best."

If we have other countries looking at the U.S. to be in the best position for market growth, we need to seize that opportunity and capitalize on it, placing ourselves in the position that can ultimately benefit our domestic markets.

USDA Opens Ninth Conservation Reserve Sign Up

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will open a ninth sign-up period July 1 thru August 4 for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP).

To enroll in the program, farmers must submit bids indicating the per acre rental payment they would accept to keep their land out of crop production and into conserving using for 10 years. Applicants must also provide a cropping history for 1981 thru 1985.

In addition to highly erodible cropland, farmers may bid to enter filter strips, cropped wetlands, certain water bank program acres and cropland subject to scour erosion.

Rental payments are made annually to producers with approved contracts and cost-share payments are made after the conservation practice is completed.

If you are interested in this program, please call your county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office for information.

Evaluate Planter Now That Planting Is Done

MOLINE, IL — Your planting is done for another year so it's time to put the planter in the shed and forget it until 1990, right?

Not necessarily.

This may be the year to evaluate your planter's performance against what will be expected of it in the future, in view of changing farming regulations and practices.

Implementing conservation compliance practices should include not only tillage equipment but also planting equipment, said Richard Johnson, senior scientist at the Deere & Company Technical Center in Moline, Illinois.

"Planting equipment has been refined during the last few years, making it very easy to adopt conservation farming practices. Planters working in these programs must handle higher crop-residue levels and the hard soil which may result, at the same time maintaining precise seed placement," according to Johnson.

What's the best planter configuration under these circumstances? "Your local implement dealer has the best answer to that question, since crop and tillage practices vary widely, sometimes on the same farm," said Johnson. "In general, the planter should be robust and strong, with additional emphasis on such items as the planter's ability to properly place starter fertilizer, cut or penetrate crop residue, and ensure proper seed/soil contact when closing the seed furrow."

Several new features have been developed during the last few years to meet the conservation program requirements, increase productivity and reliability, and make the machine easier to service and operate.

Glenn Olson, manager of cultivation, planting, and cotton equipment market planning at Deere & Company, said, "Another feature that farmers appreciate for conservation or no-till farming is the single-disk fertilizer opener. This opener has the strength to penetrate hard ground and a depth-gauging wheel allows the farmer to control fertilizer depth."

Three planter adjustments - unit operating depth, closing-wheel down force, and seed transmission - can now be made without wrenches. "The design on our new planters makes it very simple to change populations to any of 50 different seeding rates, to change closing-wheel force to any of five different settings or to change planting depth to settings between ¾ inch and four inches," Olson said.

One of the latest planter innovations is the vacuum meter. A hydraulically-driven pump creates a vacuum at each metering unit; the vacuum holds individual seeds on a rotating disk until the vacuum is cut off, allowing the seed to drop into the trench.

Seed spacing in soybean, sorghum and cotton crops is improved dramatically with the vacuum meter. "We have seen seed spacing improved by 21 percent over order planters in soybeans, 26 percent better in cotton, and 48 percent better in sorghum," said Olson. "This uniform spacing helps assure maximum yields and reduce in-row weed problems. And for convenience, changing from corn to beans or from corn to sorghum with a vacuum meter is a much simpler operation than with previous models."

As farm size increases, the problems involved with transporting equipment has become an important factor in a planter purchase decision. Larger farms require larger equipment. New wingfold planters, in eight- and 12-row sizes, allow narrow transport while giving the farmer the capability to plant eight or 12 rows with a rigid planter. When the farmer transports from field to field, a simple cam-action clutch, which is movable by hand, disengages the drive chain, thus eliminating the need to take drive chains apart manually, and also halting drive-chain wear during transport.

"Farmers can now plant row crops as narrow as 15 inches for soybeans and 30 inches for corn. Adjustments, which are made for different crops and conditions, are simple and require no wrenches," said Olson. Fertilizer application also is made easier with the new machines. So there really are many reasons why farmers should take the time to evaluate their planters and their planting methods. "It's important to their profitability that the right size machine with the right features matches the farmer's operating conditions."

Maryland Preserves 1,900 Farm Acres

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced Board of Public Works approval of $1.8 million for Maryland's Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation to purchase agricultural preservation easements on 14 parcels of land totaling more than 1,900 acres. Six of the parcels are in Baltimore County, four in Caroline, three in Queen Anne's and one in Carroll.

Chaired by the governor, the Board of Public Works also is comprised of Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and Treasurer Lucille Maurer. The board is authorized by the General Assembly to approve major construction and consultant contracts, equipment purchases, property transactions, and other procurement actions.

"The purchase of these easements allows Maryland to continue to lead the nation in the amount of permanently preserved agricultural land," Governor Schaefer said.

The Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation was created in 1977 to preserve agricultural land and woodland in order to provide sources of agriculture products within the state for its citizens, to control urban experience and provide open space land.

Entry into the program requires the establishment of agricultural preservation districts. Landowners sign a voluntary district agreement which restricts the use of their land to agriculture. Once in a district a landowner may apply to sell a permanent development rights easement to the foundation.

To date, Maryland has recorded 1,195 agricultural preservation districts totaling in excess of 170,000 acreds. The state has secured perpetual easements on more than 78,000 of these acres, the highest amount of protected agricultural acreage in any state.

Let The Cows Have Your Newspapers

BY RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

In Potter County four dairy farmers are experimenting with what they believe is a safer, cheaper method of bedding their cows. When the farmers break open the 40-pound bales in their tie stalls and free stalls, they are not forking straw; the bales are made of shredded newspaper.

The experiment is part of a pilot project sanctioned by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, and has the blessings of Lowell Ayers, manager of the Potter County Solid Waste Authority.

"From my point of view it keeps (the newspapers) out of the landfill," Mr. Ayers said. "From the farmer's point of view, it's cheap, it's safe and it's available."

The experiment is another indication of the increasing concern over growing mountains of trash and shrinking landfills in Pennsylvania and much of the rest of the nation. It is a response to a request from the Gov. Robert P. Casey administration to re-use more, and throw away less, of what we have.

Guy Temple of Penn State Cooperative Extension, and a professor on the Penn State University faculty, said the results of studies done paper bedding by Penn State researchers from several disciplines thus far have been encouraging.

"Analysis of newspaper, copier and computer printouts at Penn State indicate that heavy metals and other trace elements of concern were present at very low levels and well with safe limits, even if the bedding were consumed by the animals," Temple said in remarks prepared for a recycling conference earlier this spring in Grantsville.

"No apparent animal health problems or milk quality problems were encountered in the Penn State bedding trials of even in feeding studies when prepared newsprint was eaten at levels of 1.8 lb. to 2.4 lb., per head daily," he said.

Temple also reported tests conducted by Potter County extension agent Sam Crossley found smaller amounts of heavy metals in the manure of cattle bedded on paper bedding than on straw.

And another study on bacterial growth in various types of bedding material conducted at the University of Minnesota determined that environmental mastitis bacteria grew slowest in sawdust and newspaper, he said.

By the time the paper goes from the stalls to the manure spreader, all evidence of the newsprint is gone.

Fifteen pounds of newspapers — about one week's worth — is enough to bed a cow for a week. According to some farmers who have been using the shredded newsprint for several years.

"There is absolutely no litter problem," Ayers added. "It totally breaks down."

One farmer even reported pumping the remains of the newsprint bedding through his slurry system with no problem.

Awers also estimated the absorbtion quality of the paper reduces barn odors by 50 percent.

Mr. Temple said one farmer, using a "bale buster," is able to tear apart the newsprint and bed his cattle in about 30 minutes.

"All of this data indicates that newsprint can be used for bedding for dairy cattle," Temple said. "Notice I said newspaper, not magazines. There are still questions about the effects of metal staples used to bind magazines together causing what is called 'hardware disease' in cattle."

Area extension agents should be talking with farmers and area recycling managers to determine what equipment is available, Temple added, and what equipment might be needed, to implement newsprint bedding in farms in their part of the state.

Temple also said a Snyder County dairyman reported only needing about two to three pounds of newsprint to bed each cow per day. At that rate, Temple calculated, 1,320,500 tons of paper would bed all the dairy and beef cattle in the state for one year.

Since DER estimates there are 3,527,076 tons of used paper available in Pennsylvania each year, the state's dairy and beef cattle raisers could recycle about one-third of the total to be used as bedding.

DER's Bureau of Waste Management also estimates newsprint constitutes more than 8 percent of an average municipality's waste by weight, meaning a project such as the livestock bedding experiment could substantially reduce a municipality's cost of disposing of used newsprint.

The average Pennsylvanian generates about four pounds of garbage every day. For an average family of four, that amounts to nearly three tons per year. At the rate Pennsylvanians are currently generating trash, DER predicts the state's remaining 75 landfills will be filled in 4½ years.

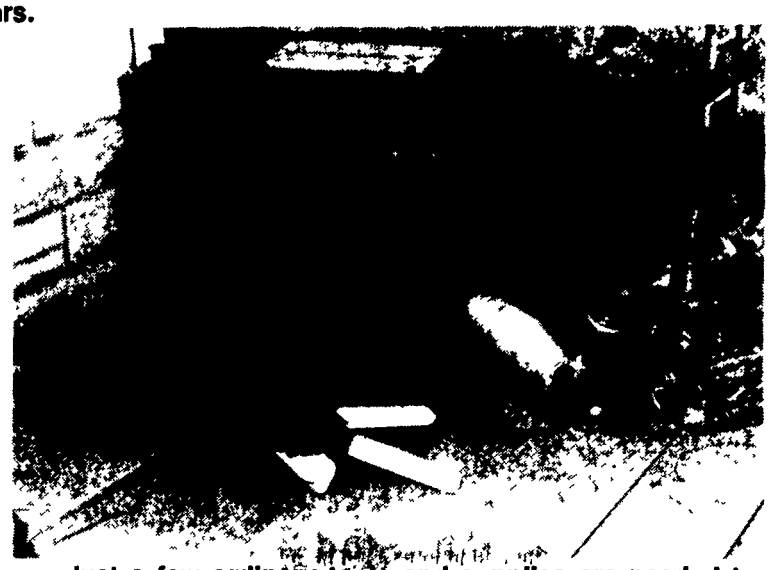
That situation was one of the main reasons for Gov. Casey's signing in July 1988 of the Municipal Waste Planning Recycling and Waste Reduction Act, commonly known as Act 101.

The new law will require more than 400 Pennsylvania municipalities to establish and operate curb side recycling programs, with the first programs mandated to start in September 1990, with the goal of recycling 25 percent of the state's trash by 1997. Currently only about 1 percent of Pennsylvania garbage is recycled.

Residents of municipalities affected by Act 101 will be required to separate at least three materials from their trash in addition to leaf waste. The materials may be clear glass, colored glass, aluminum, steel and bimetal cans, high-grade office paper, newsprint, corrugated paper or plastics.

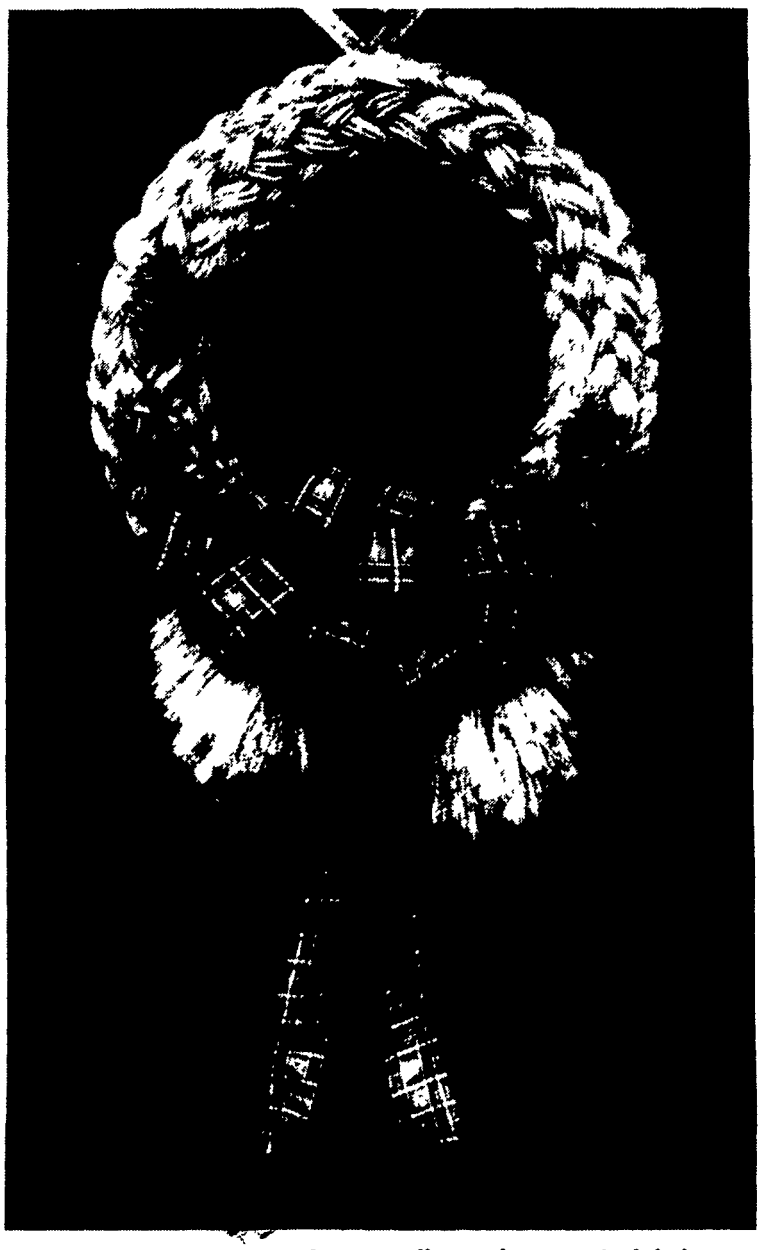
Municipal officials will decide which materials will be sorted and collected, depending in part on

(Turn to Page B4)



Just a few ordinary tools and supplies are needed to start a household recycling program: string or twine for bundling paper, bags or boxes for storing materials, needle-nose pliers or awl for removing metal rings from bottles, a can opener and a magnet for testing metals.

Homestead Notes



Here's a creative use for recycling using a material abundant on nearly every farm: a holiday wreath braided from once-used baler twine.

Recycling Facts

According to the Pennsylvania Resources Council, recycling can be a profitable venture that requires little time and no special tools. All that is needed is some heavy brown bags or boxes, twine for tying bundles of paper together, a can opener for removing the ends of cans, an awl or needle-nose pliers for removing metal rings from bottle necks and a magnet for testing metals.

Prices for recycled materials vary around the state, but generally aluminum is selling for 50 to 60 cents per pound; glass bottles and jars, bimetal and tin cans, about two cents per pound newspaper, cardboard and plastic beverage bottles, about-½ cent per pound.

In most cases, county planning offices have information on where the nearest recycling center is located and what materials it will accept.

Here are some tips from the Pennsylvania Resources Council on how to prepare recyclable materials:

— Glass: clear, amber and green glass. Rinse and remove metal rings, separate by color. Labels may remain on.

— Paper: newsprint, corrugated boxes, egg cartons, junk mail, telephone books, computer cards and print-out paper. Keep clean and dry, bundle in stacks less than one foot high. Break down cardboard boxes and stack.

— Aluminum (nonferrous metals): soda and beer cans, foil food wrap, TV trays, aluminum siding, lawn furniture frames, Test with magnet, rinse and flatten cans, cut long items to three-foot lengths.

— Ferrous metals: bimetal and tin-coated cans, cast iron, steel sheet metal. Rinse and remove labels and ends from cans, flatten. Prepare bimetal cans the same, but store separately.

— Plastics: soft drink containers, most milk bottles. Rinse, remove metal caps and rings. Flatten and store.

— Organic Wastes: non-animal food scraps, yard and lawn waste. Ask you local library or county agriculture extension agent for composting instructions.

Summer Survival

Are you counting the days until school starts? Are you harassed by the empty pantry, messy rooms and by refereeing fights? Are you looking for a home away from home?

Summer vacation often becomes a test of endurance rather than a special time to enjoy children. Being hot, tired, and out of ideas or ways to stimulate your children in new ideas can lead to desperation. However, now that the newness of summer has worn off, you may want to think about ways you can turn summer vacation into a memorable, rewarding adventure rather than an ordeal.

As the authors of "A Mother's Manual for Summer Survival" suggest, before you begin a trip, you must determine a destination and create a plan to get there. The same is true for your children's summer vacations. If you want to make the most of summertime, you need to plan where you want your children "to go."

There are about 60 days left of summer vacation. What would you like to see happen in your children's lives? There are three areas of development that you might want to plan for: intellectual, physical, and social-emotional. Make a chart for each child and write down your objectives and then your plan to reach that goal. For example, maybe Audrey needs to improve reading skills. The plan would be to read three books this summer. Maybe Sally needs to develop some swimming skills. The plan would be to enroll in a week of swimming lessons. Talk to your children about what they would like to do and accomplish this summer. That will help you with your planning and make it a worthwhile experience for both of you. Once you have your goals in mind, you're ready to select activities that will be meaningful to your children and that will help them grow in the areas you have targeted.

You also may want to plan major events like family vacations and family reunions. If possible, schedule some of your summer vacations with your extended family. It is difficult to find time for this, but the sense of family that it develops is invaluable.

If you need ideas of activities and ways to fill the day, make an activity of going to the library to check out some of the many books filled with activity suggestions. Or contact your extension office for a copy of Family Time publication with ideas for children 2-8 years of age.

As Ben Franklin wisely stated, "Lost time is never found again." My hope for you is that this summer will be less filled with those dreaded words, "What can I do" and that it will be packed full of laughter and memories.

Let The Cows Have

what markets exist locally for the resale of the collected materials.

Although the new act will affect mainly Pennsylvania's residential population, the Casey administration has been quick to point out there are patriotic and economic reasons for everyone to recycle, including rural residents.

Much of the trash could be used again in manufacturing processes, saving natural resources. According to DER, 65,749 kilowatt hours of electricity is needed to produce one ton of aluminum from bauxite ore. But to produce one ton of aluminum from recycled cans only requiress 5,742 kilowatt hours - an energy savings of 92 percent.

Much of what is thrown away in the state has some value, The Pennsylvania Resources Council, a nonprofit environmental organization in Media, has estimated many households could recycle nearly half of what they are now throwing away, sell almost 40 percent of it, and do it all in about 15 minutes per week.

And for churches, civic groups or even farm families, recycling can be a money-raising proposition, Dave Curtis, DER solid waste specialist in Pittsburgh, has estimated an average family can save and earn about $500 per year by recycling.

BIG BALE CHOPPERS
from KIDD give regular bale economy from big round bales.

For animal feed, bedding or mulching the Kidd Big Bale Chopper provides either or both sides delivery controlled from the tractor seat. It saves on hay, straw and labour. And with air box adaptor, it blows material through a 7 inch dia. flexible hose, ideal for landscaping applications. For animal feed, it chops and shreds hay to provide better digestion and increased growth rates and, for bedding, it means less waste. For mulching it can be used around strawberry plants or apple trees with considerable saving on straw and labour.

Kidd – on the right track for efficient farming.

1 pound well-trimmed beef top sirloin steak, cut 1-inch thick
3 cups sliced napa cabbage
3 cups romaine lettuce, chopped
½ cup thin diagonally sliced carrots
½ cup thinly sliced cucumber
½ cup thinly sliced radishes
1 cup cooked rice

Carve steak into thin slices. Meanwhile combine napa cabbage, romaine, carrots and radishes; place an equal amount of each on 4 individual plates. Arrange an equal number of cucumber slices in a circle at top of salad greens on each plate. Mound ¼ cup of rice on top of each cucumber circle. Fan pea pods around both sides of rice. Arrange steak slices in spoke fashion on salad greens, radiating down from rice. Serve dressing with salad. Serves 4.

Raspberry Custard

4 eggs
⅔ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2⅔ cups scalded hot milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup raspberries

Beat eggs slightly. Add the remaining ingredients except raspberries. Fold in raspberries. Poor custard in a casserole and set in a pie plate filled with water. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake 25 to 30 minutes until set. Center may look a bit soft, but this will set later. Cooking too long makes the custard watery.

ANSWER — Dorothy Swartz, Shippensburg, requested a recipe for homemade turkey sausage. Thanks Anna Cressman, Slatington, for sending yours.

Basic Turkey Sausage

1 pound ground turkey
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon sage

Mix well and refrigerate for several hours or overnight to let flavors mingle. Shape into patties. Cover and cook over meidum heat. Do not overcook. High cooking temperatures will make a tough sausage and overcooking can cause a dry sausage.

For spicier variation, try adding ½ teaspoon thyme, ½ teaspoon coriander and ¼ teaspooncayene pepper.

For milder, low salt sausage, try 1 pound ground turkey, ½ tespoon thyme, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg and ¼ teaspoon ginger.

Variations: 1 pound ground turkey, 2 minced garlic cloves, ½ teaspoon thyme and ¼ teaspoon rosemary.

Or, 1 pound ground turkey, 2 minced garlic cloves, ¼ teaspoon oregano, and ¼ teaspoon basil.

Follow same directions as with basic turkey sausage.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

How one's perspective can change! Often I'll find myself indoors, looking out into the yard and garden, and thinking there is no special job that I should be doing. Then I'll go outside and see so many things that should be done.

Number one is pruning trees and shrubs. I have an old pruning shears with a broken spring that falls out of place and causes me to hunt it in the grass. But no matter how much I trim there is always more to do.

Maybe this spring's rain caused extra luxuriant growth. There are big piles of forsythia, mock orange, Rose of Sharon and pussy willow branches. Even the new canes from the raspberry plants are six feet tall.

Now that the peas are over, I must pull out the plants and take down the poultry netting fence and try to pull up the posts that my husband hammered in for me. The emphasis is on the word "hammered" as he uses a sledge hammer and has never had a fence collapse under the weight of vegetation.

Grass and trumpet vines have decided to grow up in my iris beds. One bed is overgrown with a rock garden plant used for ground cover and must be removed as I think it has retarded their blooming.

Even the strawberries will need a lot of attention as their runners are spreading everywhere. Of course, they got weedy too. We have so many black walnut trees springing up everywhere--in the blueberries, in the bean rows and along the edge of the yard where the squirrels planted them.

And between the chore of pruning greenery is the never ending job of picking green and yellow beans.

Question Corner

ANSWER — Brenda Wenger, Ephrata, requested recipes using unsulfured baking molasses. Thanks Joanne Diller, Dillsburg, for sending in a recipe that she considers very good.

Gingerbread Cookies

1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons ginger
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup margarine, melted
½ cup evaporated milk
1 cup unsulfered molasses
¾ teaspoon vanilla extract, optional
¾ teaspoon lemon extract, optional
4 cups stone-ground or unbleached flour

Combine sugar, ginger, nutmeg, cinnamon, salt and baking soda. Mix well. Add the melted margarine, evaporated milk and molasses. Add the extracts if desired. Mix well. Add the flour 1 cup at a time, stirring constantly. The dough should be stiff enough to handle without sticking to fingers. Knead the dough for a smoother texture. Add up to ½ cup additional flour if necessary to prevent sticking. When the dough is smooth, roll it out ¼ -inch thick on a floured surface and cut it into cookies. Bake on floured or greased cookie sheets in a preheated 375 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. The cookies are finished if they spring back when touched.

Oil Spill Postpones Drilling In Alaska

BY DOUGLAS B. LEE
National Geographical News Service

KAKTOVIK, AK — It was the stillness that haunted them, say fishermen who arrived on the scene soon after oil spilled into Prince William Sound. Rocky shores once raucous with colonies of birds and sea mammals were silent as oil-muffled waves lapped black-coated beaches on islets empty of life.

It is silent, too, on the shores of the Beaufort Sea 800 miles north, where snow is melting in the foothills of Alaska's Brooks Range. But here it is a pregnant silence, the silence of anticipation, soon to be broken by nesting birds and vast herds of caribou trekking north from the interior to bear their young along the coast of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

These two wilderness jewels on opposite coasts of Alaska find their fate strangely linked by the common denominator of oil.

For more than two years, debate has rolled through Congress over the question of opening 105 miles of the refuge's coastal plain to oil exploration and development. With the backing of the Bush administration, a bill allowing exploration on the refuge's coast was approved by the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee early this year and was expected quickly to reach the Senate floor with a strong chance of passage.

Then on March 24, oil gushed from the wounded supertanker Exxon Valdez in Prince William Sound. Public outrage over the devastation put a freeze on all legislation concerning the refuge's coastal plain -- for now.

"It's been a windfall of public opinion," the Sierra Club's Tim Mahoney tells National Geographic. However, Mahoney, chairman of the Alaska Coalition of more than 50 environmental organizations dedicated to keeping the refuge's coastal plain wild, adds: "But that doesn't translate into a vote by Congress. No one who is pro-development has said they've changed their mind."

Instead, the focus of legislation has shifted to safety measures for the shipping of oil, and to the adequacy of oil-spill-response plans. Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, a leading proponent of developing the refuge's coastal plain, has introduced one of several such proposals now under consideration.

Delays are nothing new in this debate. In 1980 Congress granted wilderness status to nearly half of the refuge's 19 million acres, making 9 million acres off-limits to industry, but postponed a decision on the status of 1.5 million acres of the coastal plain pending a recommendation from the Interior Department.

In 1987 Interior Secretary Donald P. Hodel sent Congress a report advocating immediate leasing of the area. In 1988 President-elect Bush made development in the refuge a top priority of his administration's national energy policy, a position he has not changed since the oil spill.

At stake is the integrity of the nation's premier arctic wilderness, one bearing little human imprint, weighed against the need to find new domestic reserves of crude oil.

From the center of the coastal plain, the peaks of the Brooks Range stand like battlements across the southern horizon. In winter the slopes are the white of new cream. In summer they molt to shades of mahogany, walnut, and charcoal, inset with snowfields and glaciers.

Shallow, gravel-barred rivers thread the plain from mountains to sea, shining in the 24-hour sunlight like sheaves of braided platinum. The tundra's brilliant green is veined with countless meandering trails cut and recut by the Porcupine caribou herd -- named after a river within their range -- over millenia of migrations.

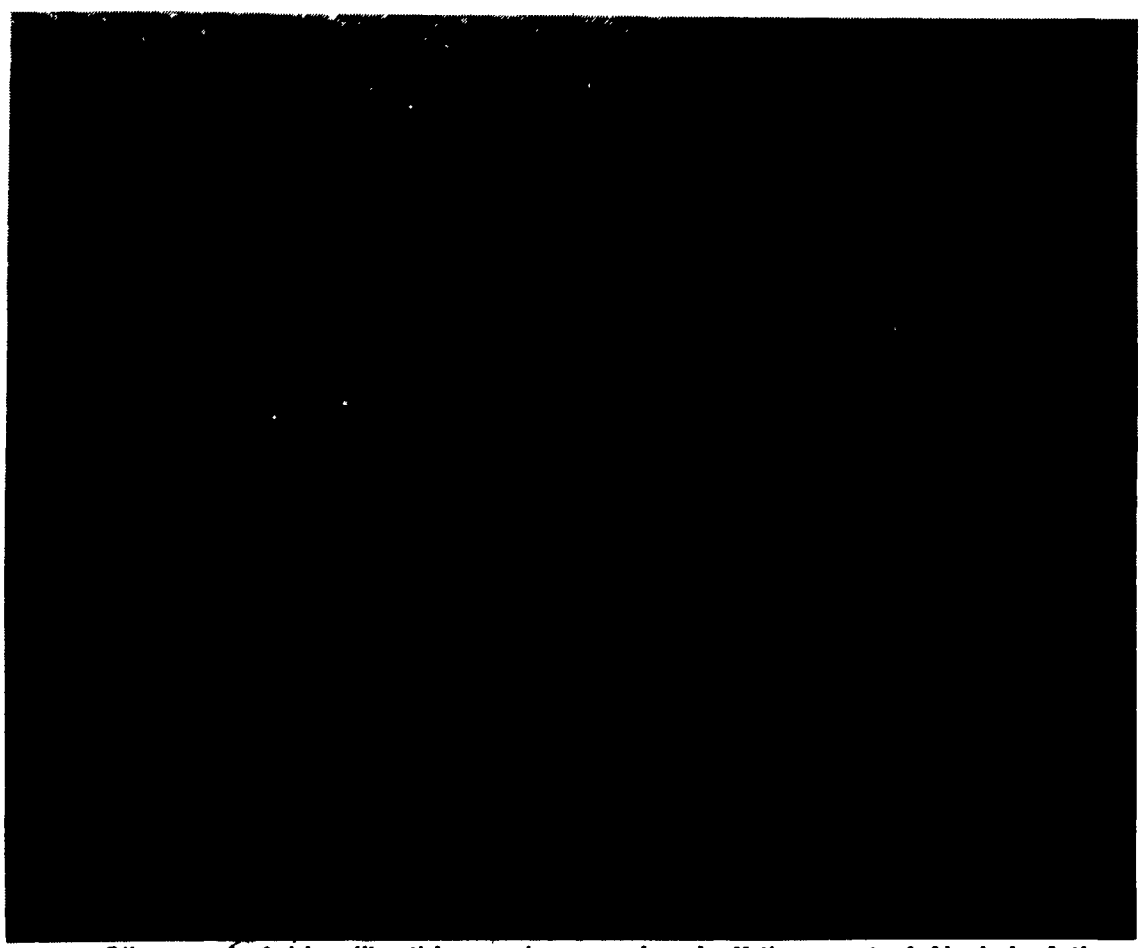
The plain is the beating heart of an ecosystem the size of Wyoming. This system is shared by Alaska and two Canadian territories and defined by the wanderings of the 180,000-head Porcupine herd, which give the refuge the title "North America's Serengeti."

In two or three weeks around early June, tens of thousands of caribou cows give birth in the foothills beside the plain. Soon afterward the rest of the herd arrives to feed on the tundra and fatten for the coming winter. Scientific evidence is inconclusive as to the likely effects of creating a large industrial complex on prime portions of the herd's summering grounds.

Other creatures could also be disturbed: polar bears that come ashore to den, must oxen reintroduced from Greenland after Alaska's stock was hunted to extinction, snow geese that descend in the fall to gorge for their southward journey.

Today a quarter of the United States' domestically produced oil flows down the pipeline for shipment through Prince William Sound. But production from the existing fields will begin to decline in the 1990s.

"The refuge is the last great hope for major oil discoveries on the North American continent," says Stevens.



Oil company ships like this one have explored off the coast of Alaska's Artic National Wildlife Refuge. Congress must decide whether to unlock part of the vast lands for oil leasing.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

After careful close examination, it appears that the damage is not long term.

No black eyes, gaping wounds, or oozing brushburns. No scabs, scars, or scuffs. Just a very faint red mark on the forehead, and hint of a headache.

Another incident of battering by animals.

Not that Gussie meant me any harm. The big, tame bred heifer was just gulping down this morning's breakfast of grain, and came up for a breath of air. It wasn't her fault that, as she brought her head up, my foot slipped at the same time I was bending over her feed tub.

The resulting impact of the bony poll on top of her head connecting with the bone of my foreskull snapped my head back and showered me with the proverbial "stars" one sees at such times.

This head-on collision wuth Gussie is just the latest in a lifetime of cattle crashes, from which I inevitably emerge the loser to bulk, brawn and brute strength.

Introduction to this phenomena of battering-by-livestock came early in my relationship with The Farmer. While helping exercise his 4-H Hereford steer, my foot and one belonging to the half-ton "Big Red" got into the same spot. Mine -- naturally -- was on the bottom. Though the resulting bruises and swelling caused a slight, temporary limp, love of the animals and their owner overcame pain.

An indication, no doubt, of what the future would hold in store. Had I looked that far ahead.

A few years ago, another head-on with a heifer, while I leaned over shaking straw in her pen, left me with the classic "egg" just above the eye. As the egg shrunk, it transformed into a most dramatic and deep-purple-shaded "shiner."

There are days, in fact, when I suspect that the most appropriate garb to wear when bedding a pen of tame heifers would be a sturdy suit of armor.

This is partly our own doing. We aim at taming the cattle as calves, getting them accustomed to petting and handling, so that they're gentle and more safe to work with. However, being accepted and treated affectionately as their friends means that you'd best keep an eye on who's got their head lowered and aimed at your back side.

And, as mature milking cows, it means they'll walk right over you on their way to snitch pile of silage of bale of hay. Or lick your arms with those sandy-papery tongue when you tie them in. And reach around to tug at your hair as you attach the milking machines.

But for sheer determination to do damage, friendly heifers and laid-back milk cow can't touch the feistiness of 100-pound bull calves. They're worst when born in the meadow, then brought in two days later to be trained to drink from a bottle.

Last week, I got a bruising put-down from a newborn bull calf.

It was actually his second bottle feeding. And I was prepared for a repeat of the first attempt: his backing into a corner, bawling, and clampng his mouth tightly shut against the warm milk offered in the two-quart baby bottle.

He did all that. And more.

With a loud bellow and head lowered, the rascal smacked into me, knocking me over backwards, as my legs entangled in the wooden slates of the pen's lift-out gate, which I had propped partly-open for access. Meanwhile, he sailed out over top, bawling at the top of his lungs, and took off in the direction of the maternity pen.

The bull calf has since gone to a new owner, and my shinbone bruise is slowly healing.

And I've vowed to remember to close the gate when working with harmless newborns.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Fresh fruit: Serve it fresh or quickly microwave it into a luscious topping for ice milk or angel food cake.

When microwaving fresh fruit, as in Peach Confetti Topping (below), no water is needed to prevent scorching, so minimum sugar can be used. Peaches and sugar are tightly covered, so peaches steam and form their own juice. The result is a flavorful, syrupy fruit sauce, perfect to serve as a refreshing topping.

When microwaving fresh fruit to make a thick sauce, as in Cherries Jubilee Topping (below), there's no constant stirring or worry of scorching either. The mixture must be stirred at the times indicated in the recipe to get a lump-free sauce. When fresh fruit isn't plentiful, canned cherries may be used. Drain cherries and use the liquid instead of water. Cook sauce first and add fruit just to heat it. (See directions below recipe.)

Fresh fruit combined with warm store-bought ice cream topping makes luscious eating, too. By using fruit with topping, you get sweetness from the fruit, so you don't need as much of the "empty calorie" topping.

Try diced apples drizzled with warm store-bought caramel topping, or diced pears drizzled with warm chocolate sauce. Unsweetened strawberries drizzled with warm honey or peaches drizzled with warm maple syrup are other tasty combinations.

Warm the store-bought toppings honey, or syrup in the original glass jar by microwaving on High for 20 to 40 seconds. Don't microwave too long — toppings should be warm, not hot. To even out heat, stir topping before using. Be sure to remove the cover before microwaving.

Peach Confetti Topping

2 large fresh peaches, sliced (peel, if desired)
¼ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons quartered marschino cherries
2 tablespoons sliced almonds
Ice cream, ice milk, pound cake or angel food cake

Place peaches and sugar in microwave-safe 1-quart measure; cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 3 to 4 minutes or until peaches are tender. Stir in maraschino cherries and almonds. Serve warm over ice cream or ice milk, or cold over angel food cake or pound cake. Store leftovers in refrigerator. Makes about 2 cups (about 8 servings).

To reheat: Microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes or until warm.

Hint: Recipe can be doubled. Use double amount of ingredients and a 2-quart container, and microwave about double the above time.

Each ¼ cup of Topping: 52 calories, 1g protein, 1g fat, 11g carbohydrate, 0 sodium, 0 cholesterol.

Cherries Jubilee Topping

½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup water
3-4 cups (1 pound) fresh sweet cherries, pitted
½ teaspoon slivered orange peel
Ice cream, ice milk, pound cake or angel food cake.

Combine sugar and cornstarch in microwave-safe 2-quart measure or bowl; blend in water until smooth. Stir in cherries. Microwave (High), uncovered, 5 to 7 minutes, stirring after each 2 minutes, or until thick. Add orange peel. Serve warm over ice cream or ice milk, or cold over angel food cake or pound cake. Store leftovers in refrigerator. Makes about 2½ cups (10 servings).

To reheat: Microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes, stirring each minute, or until just warm. Do not overheat or topping will thin.

Hint: Recipe can be halved. Use half of ingredients and a 1-quart container. Microwave about half the above time, stirring after each 1 minute.

Each ¼ cup of Topping: 68 calories, 1g protein, 0 fat, 18g carbohydrate, 0 sodium, 0 cholesterol.

With canned sweet cherries: Drain 2 cans (16 ounces each) of sweet dark cherries; save 1 cup of juice. Combine only ⅓ cup sugar and the 2 tablespoons cornstarch in microwave-safe 2-quart measure or bowl; blend in 1 cup of drained liquid. Microwave (High) 4 to 5 minutes, stirring after each 2 minutes, or until thick and smooth. Stir in cherries and orange peel. Microwave (High) 1 to 2 minutes, covered, or until cherries are hot.

Questions and answers -

Q. I can't get a sandwich to brown on my browning grill. What should I do differently?

A. Try preheating the grill for a longer time (but never over the maximum time given in manufacturer's directions). Microwave the maximum time, or even 20 to 30 seconds longer than time given in manufacturer's directions. Work quickly. As soon as preheat time is up, place the sandwich on the hot grill, pressing sandwich down with a spatula. Immediately after the first side is brown turn sandwich over, press down, and brown the second side.

Q. Is it OK to caramelize sugar in the microwave?

A. I don't recommend caramelizing sugar in the microwave for several reasons. The sugar gets very hot, and it's dangerous to work with. It's hard to prevent the sugar from burning, and hard to handle the hot dish. Also, the intense heat could break the dish.

Q. When I dry my herbs or anything else, I always put a glass of water in the corner of my microwave. I understood that you were not to run the microwave oven dry. Is this not so now?

A. A microwave oven should not be run empty. Herbs contain moisture, so it is safe to microwave herbs until the moisture is gone. However, if you microwave herbs after they're dry, it is like running the microwave empty. (Also, the herbs can burn). That's why it's so important to watch herbs closely towards end of drying. Microwave about 30 seconds, stir, let stand a few minutes, check for dryness, and repeat if necessary.

When you place a glass of water in your microwave during drying, you're adding more moisture to the oven cavity, resulting in longer drying time.

Jan Skiles Finds Pleasure In Cooking For Others

BY LOU ANN GOOD

NARVON (Lancaster Co.) — Some careers seem to happen without any effort. Some evolve from hobbies or interests. That's what happened to Jan Skiles. This dairy farm wife is one of those people who sits back and tries to figure out how and when her catering business started.

She has earned a reputation for providing great food and superior services in her customized catering business.

After a two-year stint as a home economics education major, Jan realized she did not want to teach. Food fascinated her so she switched to food service management and got her degree from Indiana University of Pennsylvania. At college, Jan said, she got a lot of theory, but little food preparation.

Jan married Jere Skiles who dairy farms Pequea Meadows with his dad Kenneth. She dabbled in fast food restaurant management and as a dietary supervisor at a nursing home.

"Although I enjoyed it to a certain extent," Jan recalled, "I did not feel good about managing. I prefer to prepare the food myself rather than tell someone else to do it."

Because she loves food preparation, she often entertained friends and family. With her husband Jan helped out with their local Jaycee's annual lobster dinner. When the Jaycees stopped hosting the annual event, several people mourned the loss. "It was unique. There was nothing like it nearby, so my husband and I offered to serve a lobster dinner for those interested."

People loved it. The Skiles thought it was a once and done thing.

Six years ago, Jan quit her job to become a fulltime mother. She had no intentions of catering on the side. But on occasion someone who had attended the lobster event needed catered food and they remembered the Skiles and called them.

My husband encouraged me," Jan said. "He's my public relations person. It's mostly through him that I have contacts with clients."

She does all the preparation in her own kitchen, which is not large. Arranging the food to make it pleasing to the eye is Jan's goal. "I use lots of garnishes because I'm a firm believer in the theory that "the better it looks, the better it tastes."

Although she will cater any size, Jan said the smallest event she did was for 60 to 75 people; the largest was 350.

"It's very parttime," Jan said of her catering responsibilities. "While the children are small I really can't handle more than two large receptions a month since it takes about a week of preparation."

Jan is particular. She frequents roadside stands and spends hours picking out top produce. "I pay that extra 50 cents to have someone pick strawberries that are just perfect."

Although she does like to try new things and not stick to the usual, she said, "I like to be sure of myself. I don't like to experiment on others."

Her most common fear is running out of food. "That would be disasterous in my business," she said. On the other hand, leftovers cut profits and Jan does not have the space to store them.

Her stint as a caterer is not without stress. At Christmas, she ordered 90 fresh lobsters to be shipped to Lancaster. The order was confirmed Wednesday. The party was scheduled for Saturday. When the Skiles went to pick up the order on Saturday morning, there were no lobsters.

"Where do you buy 90 lobsters during the week between Christmas and New Year's?" Jan asked.

Frantically they dialed a Maine supplier. He was doubtful that he could ship them on such short order, but he tracked down a flight and had the lobsters flown to Philadelphia at 5 p.m.

(Turn to Page B16)

Jan Skiles finds much pleasure in cooking for others.

Cooking for a crowd is not easy for everyone, but for Jan Skiles, it brings lots of pleasure.

When Jan caters, the details from centerpieces to china are taken care of. This black and white decorated cake with cows on top promotes Holsteins. Jan does not do cake decorating instead she assigns someone else to do special orders.

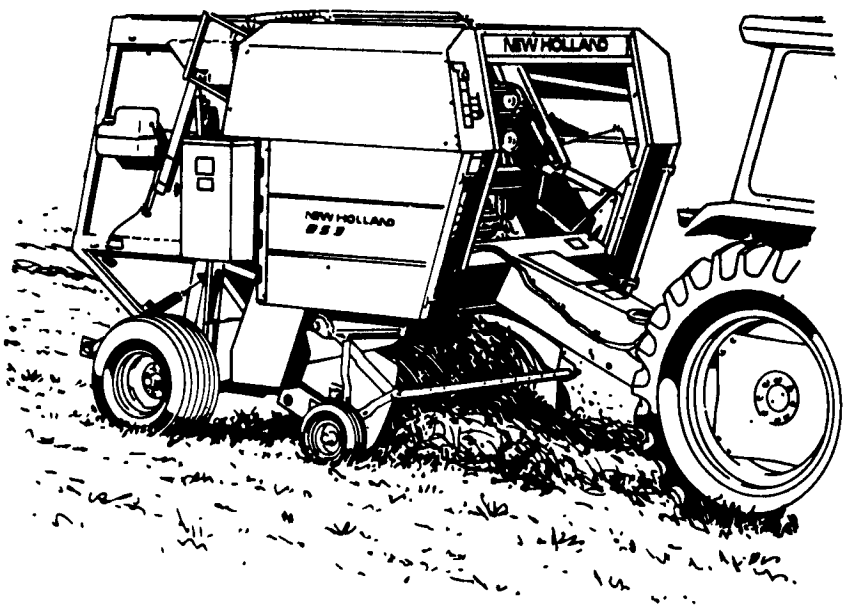
See The Leader In Round Balers

At Your Ford New Holland Dealer



Less leaf loss. And better bales.

New Fastnet™ Net Wrap system, an optional tying method for selected New Holland round balers, gives better looking and better weathering bales. Just two plastic net wraps do the job of 12 to 15 twine wraps per bale. And they do it better too, because bales are turned fewer times. That means less leaf loss and better quality hay. Now you can net more hay—and more profits, too. Stop in today.

Now pick up more hay.

New wide pickup, available on Models 848 and 853 New Holland round balers, lets you handle wider windrows. So you pick up more crop instead of leaving it in the field. And the flared sides mean smoother bale ends for sharper, better-looking bales. Stop in today for a look at the wide ones.

Avoid Food-Borne Illness With Proper Precautions

Lancaster County has shown a steady increase of diarrheal diseases caused by two main bacteria - campylobacter and salmonella the past few months. According to the Pennsylvania Department of Health there have been 48 reports of campylobacter and 49 cases of salmonella through June 20th.

The Pennsylvania Department of Health is concerned that consumers be made aware of these diseases, how they can be contracted and what can be done to prevent them. For that reason I agreed to devote this week's column to this subject.

Both bacteria are found in food and can cause a disease, which is contagious from person to person, with flu-like symptoms of fever, diarrhea, abdominal pain, headache and sometimes vomiting 12 to 36 hours after eating infected food. It can last two to seven days. Infants, the elderly and persons with weakened resistance to infection are most frequently affected.

It is essential that an individual not work as a food handler if diagnosed with salmonella. Food poisoning outbreaks have often been traced to an infected food handler. Even after the symptoms disappear the organism can still be present and can be transmitted.

Foods of animal origin provide a favorable environment for these bacteria to grow. Examples include poultry, meats, dairy products and eggs. Investigations of actual outbreaks reported to the Center for Disease Control show that bacteria + food safety mistakes can = illness.

However, even if these bacteria are present in foods, you will not become ill if you cook and handle the food properly. Errors during food shopping, transport, preparation, serving or storage can enable bacteria to grow or even just survive. If foods are prepared a day or more ahead of time and food handlers make mistakes, the chance of illness can increase, because bacteria have more time to multiply.

In outbreaks traced to bacteria or other organisms in meat or poultry, one or more food handling mistakes enabled bacteria on raw products to survive and cause the food-borne illness:

Bacteria can survive in water, soil, and on the kitchen counter, so sanitation can make a big difference in preventing bacteria that could be on raw products from contaminating other foods. This is called cross-contamination. Here are some guidelines to prevent this from happening.

*Wash your hands frequently with SOAP and water for at least 20 seconds — after you use the bathroom, before you start food preparation, before you start working with a new food or a new tool, when you finish food preparation, and before you serve food.

*Never let raw meat and poultry, or their juices, come in contact with cooked meat or any other food — raw or cooked.

*If you use a dishcloth for cleaning kitchen surfaces, switch to a clean one after you work with raw meat or poultry. Choose a dishcloth that will stand up to laundering in hot water and chlorine bleach. Otherwise, use paper towels and throw away after use.

*Cut raw meat and poultry on an acrylic cutting board that is thoroughly cleaned after each use. Use that favorite (but porous) wooden one only for cutting bread or vegetables.

*Wash cutting boards, knives, counter, and other implements

Jan Skiles Finds Pleasure

Jan said, "My husband picked them up in Philadelphia at 5 p.m. He arrived at the party at 7:00 p.m. The lobsters were on the guests plates by 7:30 p.m."

Jan wipes her forehead remembering the frantic pace. "We don't like to work that close," she said. "But people find it exciting to realize that the lobster was swimming in the ocean in the morning and on their plates in the evening—that's rather unique for this area."

Catering brings more satisfaction to Jan than any other job she has held. She said, "I've always been a creative person and this allows me to be creative. We do whatever people want. We will provide the china, chairs, tent, flowers."

Jan said, "I'm amazed at what people will pay to have someone else do the work for them. They'd rather not bother stopping at five different places to pick up supplies.

Currently she prepares the food at home. She'd like to eventually have a larger kitchen facility, but she said, "I always want to be able to work out of home. I want to keep my family involved and I want to keep it small enough that I can do most everything myself."

She doesn't have a price list, but her college courses taught her how to price things. "I know how many hours it will take me to do a job. I know how many people I need to hire to help and I know how much I need to make it worthwhile," she said.

The biggest problem for the Skiles is transporting the food. They have a mini van and a pick up truck. They pack food in ice and use ice chests. Investing in large stainless steel bowls and equipment is also expensive. "I try to add a new item to my inventory everytime we cater," she said.

The Skiles never advertized. Jan said, "I think we are unique because we cook anything a customer wants. Offering lobsters and steak is not the usual catered affair, but if people want the usual picnic fare, we will provide it."

More important than her business is her family. Jan, who grew up in town said, "I wouldn't go back to town. I love the farm. My husband's family is rich in heritage and family traditions. They spend a lot of time together."

Church is also important to the Skiles family. Jan said, "We are heavily involved in helping at the Parkesburg Baptize Church. I'm chairperson of missions and a young adult Sunday School teacher." The Skiles are also active in the Chester County Central Camp of Gideons.

If you're planning a formal dinner party with lobsters and steaks or a picnic for hundreds, Jan Skiles is the person to call.

To Jan, catering isn't merely a business or a job. She said, "It gives me great pleasure to have others enjoy my cooking."

Amy Wolfgang, left, was crowned Montgomery County Dairy Princess by Laurie Sterner, former county princess and state alternate.

Amy Wolfgang To Represent Montgomery County

The 1989 Montgomery County Dairy Princess, Amy Wolfgang, was recently crowned by Laurie Sterner at the Richland Mall.

Amy is the daughter of Robert and Gail Wolfgang of Bechtelsville. She is a 1988 graduate of Boyertown Senior High and is studying Early Childhood Education at Montgomery County Community College.

She has been a member of the Western Mont-Berks 4-H Dairy Club for 11 years. Amy also participates in the 4-H Exchange Club and the 4-H Horse Science Club. In other 4-H activities she has gone to Capital Days, Citizen Washington Focus, District, State, and National Dairy Shows and is a National 4-H Ambassador.

After the crowning the Montgomery and Bucks County Dairy Princess Committees built an ice cream sundae which was served to mall visitors.

Camden County 4-H Fair

The Camden County 4-H Fair will be held July 13-15 at the 4-H Center in the Lakeland Complex, Blackwood, NJ. Admittance is free. Parking donation $2.00.

Following the grand opening, Miss New Jersey will act as emcee for the Ambassador and Jr. Ambassador Presentation. A dance with entertainment by DeeJay Rich Decolli then closes the evening.

Friday, July 14, features an open pet show, presentations by Willie the Crime Fighter, chicken barbecue, games and races for the children, horse shows, square dance, and a clogging invitational.

Saturday's events include an appearance by Sally Starr, an open horse show, baby parade, toddler races, radio-controlled airplane demonstration, fashion show, frog jumping contest, Camden County K-9 Corps Demonstration and the 4-H talent show - making this a fun-filled family day.

The fair features 4-H educational exhibits, game booths, pony rides, Smokey the Bear, commercial exhibits, and much more. Entertainment at the fair is provided free to all who wish to attend.

Your family can join in the fun too. Call the 4-H office at 784-1001 for information and to obtain a book of our open classes in which adults and youths can enter.

Lycoming County Fashion Revue

The Fashion Revue will be held Monday, July 10 at the Pine Street United Methodist Church, Williamsport. Four-H Leaders who planned the event are: Jo Ann Huling, Jerry DeMorat and Vivian Eck.

Registration begins at 6:00 p.m. Judging begins at 6:30 p.m. Master Clothing and Textile Volunteers will do the judging: Helen Casselberry, Louis Metzger, Terry Johnson. Mary Robbins and Josephine Williams.

A very special evening has been planned to help celebrate Cooperative Extension's 75th Anniversary. There will be clowns, balloons, entertainment by Renate's School of the Dance, a Fashion Show, awards and a reception. The public is invited to attend.

with detergent and hot water immediately after you use them with raw meat and poultry.

*After washing and rinsing equipment and counters, professional food service workers also sanitize and rinse them. If you want to sanitize your implements after washing you can use a solution of 2 to 3 teaspoons of household chlorine bleach in 1 quart of water, followed by a cold water rinse.

*Serve cooked meat and poultry on clean plates. When you grill meat or poultry never put the cooked food back on the plate with raw juices.

*Keep pets away from food, and away from cooking and eating surfaces and equipment.

These bacteria, however many there are, do not survive when beef or pork is cooked to an internal temperature of at least 160 degrees F, or when poultry is cooked to 185 degrees F. (Some experts believe that this country's passion for rare beef explains why beef is involved in more reported outbreaks than poultry.)

*Use a meat thermometer to check "doneness." If meat is too thin for a thermometer, follow the recipe and cook till the juices are clear.

*Never drink raw milk. Commercial pasteurization of milk destroys the bacteria.

*Never consume raw eggs in homemade egg nog, ice cream or Caesar salad dressing. Never serve soft-cooked eggs or soft sunny-side up eggs. The yolks need to be firm to be safe to eat.

*Never interrupt cooking - it's a "half-baked idea" that can make you sick. After thawing foods in the microwave, cook them immediately.

*If reheating leftovers, cover and reheat thoroughly to 165 degrees F. Allow sauces and gravies to reach a rolling boil.

*Don't store the latecomer's cooked meat and poultry dinner in a warm oven. Hold the food above 140 degrees F. or better yet refrigerate it and reheat when needed.

Refrigeration and even freezing do not kill bacteria, but proper cooling can usually prevent them from multiplying.

*Refrigerate raw meat and poultry as soon as possible after you take it out of the grocery meat case.

*Refrigerate food containing cooked meat or poultry within 2 hours after cooking.

*Refrigerate or freeze cooked meat or poultry casseroles in covered shallow pans rather than deep pots. Leave space around the containers to let cold air circulate.

*Never thaw frozen meat or poultry on the kitchen counter. Thaw it in your refrigerator or, if you are in a hurry and don't have a microwave, thaw under cold running water.

*Always remember that refrigeration or freezing cannot be counted on to kill bacteria. It cannot fix a mistake such as leaving cooked turkey at room temperature for more than 2 hours - it can only postpone the risk of illness.

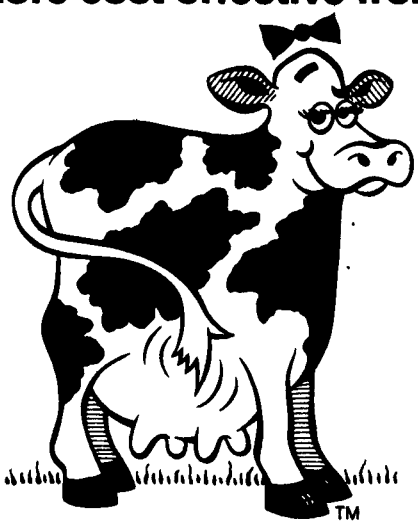
The SURPASS™ Cow.
More cost effective from mouth to milk.



Imagine a cow where feed goes directly from mouth to udder. She'd be a very cost effective animal, but unfortunately, a rather rare breed.

The next best thing would be a feed supplement that helps your cow increase her potential for more milk production.

Improved liquid Surpass™ combines natural, high bypass protein with economical NPN to deliver the right proteins to the right places.

The higher nutrient density of Surpass means you can feed more of your economical home grown grains and forages. Your cows can get more fiber to increase the potential for more butterfat and a higher milk premium.

More milk, more butterfat—and you can get them with a savings in time and effort.

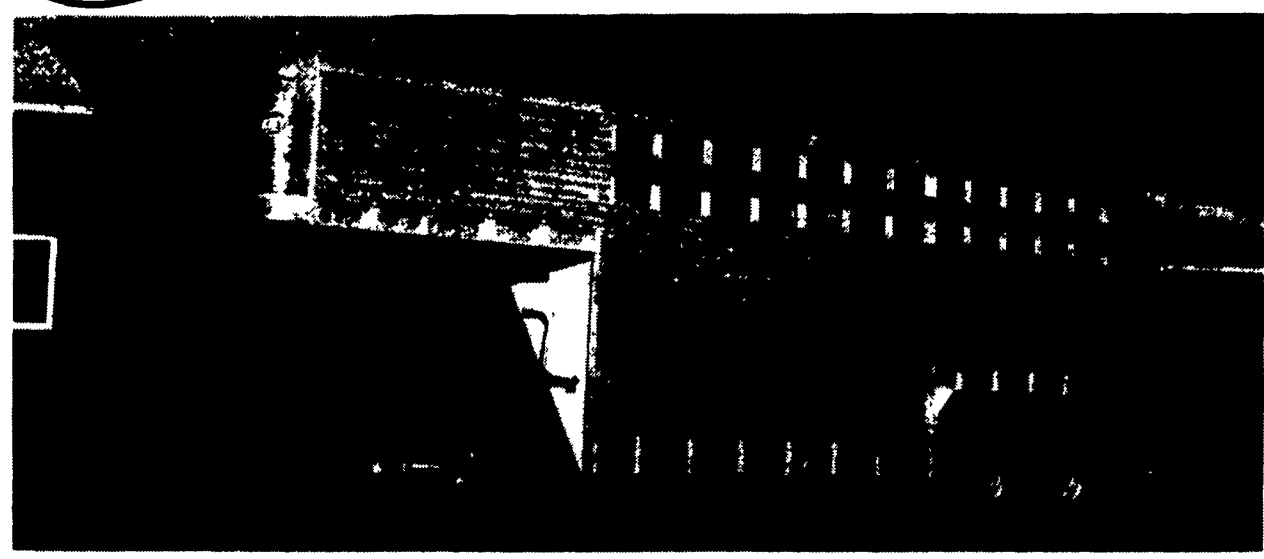
ALUMINUM GOOSENECK TRAILERS



20' Gooseneck Trailer

A versatile, lightweight, Eby aluminum stock trailer is built to provide years of maintenance free service. An Eby trailer is custom built to fit your individual hauling needs - No mass production! We use only quality components and strong alloy aluminum to manufacture what may be the last trailer you'll ever buy.

• LIGHTWEIGHT - Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.

• MAINTENANCE- Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.

• DURABILITY - Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

The starting tour is early, but necessary to see the Food Center in action. For those traveling a distance, a group rate is available at the Budget Lodge ($45 per room--single or double). The cost for the bus tour will be $20 if phone reservations are made with the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association at 717/473-8468 (day or evening). Motel reservations should also be made with the Vegetable Growers Association. Everyone must ride the bus so the tour can stay together in the city traffic. Meals are not included in the tour price.

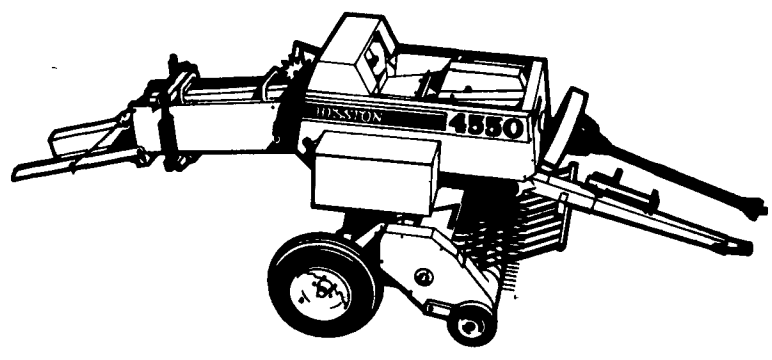
LOW-COST CENTERLINE BALERS!



Hesston Models
4550 & 4570
14" x 18"
Square Balers

The economical Model 4550 and Model 4570 are Hesston's newest entries in the square bale market. Thanks to the exclusive "Centerline Design," these new balers build the straightest, squarest bales possible. And since they employ Hesston's preformed flake concept, leaves are saved and uniformly distributed throughout the bale.

The low profile pickup sweeps windrows clean with less disturbance of the crop and the low profile of these models gives the operator excellent visibility.

The optional hydraulic powered bale thrower saves time and labor. You control direction and distance from the tractor seat so your wagon can be filled side-to-side and front-to-rear. Bales can also be dropped without detaching thrower.

These new models are brought to you by Hesston. See them at your dealer now!

AGRIPRO SOYBEANS

NUMBER ONE IN RESEARCH

AP-3023
Big Yields On Lighter Soils.
This fast-growing Group III variety combines drought adaptability with very good Phytophthora tolerance. For maximum yield and stress tolerance. This high-performance variety does well with no-till practices, and we recommend planting at moderate populations in 30-inch rows. AP-3023 has a very good resistance to shattering, protecting your yield when harvest is slightly delayed.

AP-3977
A Big Yielder And Nearly Disease Proof
This hardy late Group III variety has resistance to 15 Phytophthora races. Its excellent standability makes it first choice for narrow rows. AP-3977 overcomes disease to produce big yields.

AP-4321
Short, Stout and Bred to Yield.
You can expect big yields when you plant this high profit early Group IV variety on your better soils. It adapts very well to narrow-row planting and responds strongly to fertility. AP-4321 produces excellent yields without lodging. It's an excellent companion to popular AP-350.

AP-350
The Soybean The Others Would Love to Beat!
This proven performer is the benchmark early Group IV variety.
Maturity is 4 days later than Williams 82, and 1 day later than AP-4321. It produces consistently high yields and has excellent resistance to Phytophthora root rot. AP-350 does well even on wider rows and adapts to a wide variety of soil conditions and management practices.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

-One of the most closely guarded secrets in Pennsylvania each year is the identity of the Poultryman of the Year. But the 1959 Poultryman of the Year, Roy B. Herr, Lancaster RD7, knew he had been tabbed for the honor before Leslie Hubbard, Lancaster hatcheryman, introduced him to the audience at the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation's banquet recently.

The knowledge was Herr's, not because he eavesdropped or had a tip, but because he probably knows more of the history and developments in the state's poultry industry than any other Pennsylvania farmer.

"Les gave it away," he said this week, "when he said the guy he was about to introduce had been in the poultry business for more than 40 years. And as far as I know, I'm the only farmer in the state who has been at it that long."

-Omaha, Nebraska...Leon A. Piguet, East Aurora, N.Y., dairyman and business leader was elected president of The Holstein -Friesian Association of America at its 74th Annual Convention here recently.

Piguet, vice president of the national Holstein organization since 1957, succeeds Scott Meyer of Hannibal, Mo.

New vice president is Fred J. Nutter of Corinna, Me. Like Meyers and Piguet, he is a former director of the Association.

Dr. Jacob B. Sims, Lancaster, Ohio, was elected to succeed outgoing director M. J. Humphrey, Williamsfield, Ohio.

-A new farm tractor tire with radial cord-ply design produced greater traction and power efficiency than the conventional tractor in recent U.S. Department of Agricultural tests, it was reported today.

The layers of fabric (cord) in the new tire are restrained by a stiff hoop of fabric under the tread.

Irvin F. Reed of USDA's Agricultural Research Service said the radial-ply tire had a tractor drawer pull superiority of 33 percent in concrete, 23 in loam, 21 in clay and 8 in sand.

-Prices received by Pennsylvania farmers in June were down nine per cent, or 21 points on the index from June 1958, according to a report released July 1 by the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The prices-received index rose one point from May, due primarily to increases in prices of fruit and vegetables. Vegetable prices increased three percent over May, but were still off 10 per cent from June, 1958.

-Donald W. Parke, Lancaster, has been named executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Millers' Association. The announcement was made Thursday by Association President Robert I. Aten.

Parke will assume his new duties on July 1. He succeeds Richard I. Ammon who recently resigned to accept a similar position with the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council.

For the past 13 years, Parke has been field secretary and assistant to the managing director of the Pennsylvania Retailers' Association with headquarters in Lancaster.

In this position, he has had extensive experience working on both state and national legislation affecting retailers; conducting research on retail personnel practices, wages and store operation; the organization and development of information on labor relations and the administration of a group insurance program.

Drought Didn't Hurt 1988 Corn Quality

WASHINGTON — The latest report on the quality of domestic corn by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Federal Grain Inspection Service found the drought had little impact on the quality characteristics of the 1988 crop.

FGIS Administrator W. Kirk Miller said, "While last summer's drought had a devastating effect on the size of the U.S. corn crop, it did not adversely affect its quality."

In FGIS' 1988 U.S. Corn Crop Quality Report, 42 percent of the samples collected for the study earned the U.S. No. 1 grade, nearly the same as the 41.3 percent that received this grade in a similar review of the 1987 crop.

The report also showed that moisture content was slightly lower and that the amount of damaged kernels dropped significantly in the 1988 crop compared to the previous year. A marginal increase was reported in the average amount of broken kernels and foreign material in the 1988 crop compared to 1987, but the amounts were below the average of the 1986 crop.

The report is based on FGIS' annual summary of randomly selected samples of all official inspections performed on new-crop corn during the first four weeks following the start of local harvests throughout the country. The average quality of these selected samples is indicative of the quality of all corn officially inspected during the period. The survey of the 1988 corn crop included 2,361 samples.

For more information and copies of the report, including a detailed summary with averages by grade and state, contact Allen A. Atwood, USDA, FGIS, P.O. Box 96454, Washington, D.C. 20090-6454.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES AND OPTIONS

Simple hydraulics allows one valve to operate the lift and stabilizer cylinders. Center plumbing means less hose length and easier coupling.

The basic box is heavy-duty steel welded seams, and reinforced for even more strength.

Standard offset hitch adjusts in 5-inch steps to lengths from 6'3" to 7'11". To allow for different row crop spacings, you can offset either right or left 5, 7½, 10 or 12½ inches.

Rub rails offer more protection to vehicles when approaching, during dumping cycle, and when departing.

Stabilizer cylinders hydraulicly lock on to axle to hold wagon rigid during dump cycle.

Galvanized roof features vent insert for straight-through air flow.

DO YOU FARM HILLS? WE HAVE ONE UNIT IN STOCK WITH BRAKES READY TO GO!

The model 700 dump wagon is designed for years of trouble free service. The hydraulic system with a cable assist is designed to unload large loads of up to 20,000 lbs. quickly and efficiently even if the load is not distributed evenly.

Make your operation safer • Use year round • Variety of crops • All field conditions • Operate in wet and muddy

When Your Truck Reaches The Blower, Just Back Into Your RICHARDTON Conveyor Box, Dump Your Load And Race Away For The Next!

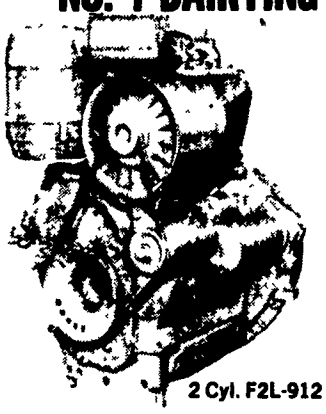
NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL



2 Cyl. F2L-912

KHD DEUTZ

Since 1968 F2L-912 diesels have earned the reputation as the most reliable diesel. Don't settle for less.

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting. No electric heater plugs.

QUIETER: Runs quieter than most water cooled diesels. Very quiet exhaust.

Continuous Duty Rating: 26.5 HP @ 1800 RPM

Fewer repair parts than comparable three-cylinder diesels - cheaper to overhaul.

It has direct injection, lube oil cooling, and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

PLUS-FAMOUS DEUTZ FUEL ECONOMY

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS
Check Your Silo Now For Rotten Staves. If You Have Been Using Your Silo For 10 To 15 Years For Either Corn Silage Or Haylage, It Is Time To SHOTCRETE.

WARNING! DETERIORATING CONCRETE FROM CORN JUICE!

If you have a 15 year old silo... get it fixed or insure it better! But don't wait until the last minute to have it repaired because we may not be able to fix it if you wait too long.
REMEMBER your silo will not fall over when it's empty - it will fall over when it's full. It cannot stand on deteriorated concrete...

Wolff Asks USDA For Export Help

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff recently urged the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Foreign Agriculture Service to provide $11.7 million over three years to help Northeastern states export agricultural products.

Wolff met with USDA officials in his role as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Eastern United States Agriculture and Food Export Council. The funding, from the Targeted Export Assistance program, could be used to help firms in Northeastern states like Pennsylvania expand overseas sales.

"Our producers are finding new overseas markets every month and USDA must play an important role in that market development," Wolff said. "Foreign buyers are looking for quality food products at the same time our growers and processors are looking for new markets for the highest quality food in the world."

USDA Seeks Comment On Proposed Ammendments To Egg Board Order Regulations

WASHINGTON, DC. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is proposing two amendments to the Egg Research and Promotion Order that would raise producer assessments from 2.5 cents to 5 cents per case of 30 dozen eggs and establish refund procedures if a scheduled referendum favors discontinuance of non-refundable assessments.

Kenneth C. Clayton, acting administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the order, which implements provisions of the 1974 Egg Research and Consumer Information Act, authorizes producer assessments of up to 5 cents per case, and for years assessments were set at that rate.

USDA set the 2.5-cents rate Sept. 1, 1987, when egg prices were so low that producers found the higher rate impractical. Producers have petitioned USDA to restore the higher rate, now that the economic situation for egg producers has improved, Clayton said.

The assessments that fund research and promotion activities of the American Egg Board had been refundable on request before Jan. 1, 1989. An Oct. 21, 1988, amendment to the act authorized non-refundable assessments for an 18-month period.

Beginning January 1, the amended order provides that 10 percent of the producers' assessments are to be put in an interest-bearing escrow account, pending results of a referendum on continuance of the non-refundable provision. The producer referendum will follow the 18-month period.

Should the referendum favor discontinuance of non-refundable assessments, procedures would be necessary to provide refunds to those seeking them, Clayton said. The other proposed amendment to the egg order's rules and regulations would establish such procedures, the principal one requiring that the board furnish one-time refund applications to eligible producers, to be signed and returned no later than 90 days after the amendment is effective.

Should the referendum favor continuing the non-refundable assessment program, escrowed assessments would revert to the board.

Authorized by the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act, the American Egg Board conducts programs to maintain and develop markets for eggs, egg products and laying hens no longer suitable for egg production. Producer assessments finance the programs.

The proposed amendments will appear in the June 23 Federal Register.

Comments, to be received before August 7, should be sent to Janice L. Lockard, Chief, Standardization Branch, Poultry Division, AMS, USDA, Rm. 3944-S, P.O. Box 96456, Washington, D.C. 20090-6456.

Sunbathing Keeps Grasshoppers Healthy

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A few days' rest in the sunshine apparently works just as well for pesky grasshoppers as for people.

"Grasshoppers like to sit in the sun," says Raymond I. Carruthers, a U.S. Department of Agriculture research entomologist. Sunbathing, it turns out, is a necessity if the hoppers are to stay healthy.

"If it's cold, a grasshopper can't develop as quickly," he said. "It might not develop to adulthood at all during its growing season from — May into September."

As grasshoppers soak up the sun, their internal temperatures rise to around 100 degrees F. While that works wonders for the grasshoppers, it's bad news for ranchers and farmers.

Grasshoppers destroy about 23 percent of all forage grasses suitable for grazing in 17 of 22 western states. "They are a multimillion dollar problem," Carruthers said, adding that the migrating insects also cause losses of potatoes, alfalfa and other crops.

Sun-loving hoppers are even worse news for scientists who have tried to beat them back with a fungus, Entomophaga grylli. E. grylli can be quite effective against the pests, invading and subsequently destroying their bodies. But, Carruthers has found that the naturally occurring fungus typically can't survive the soaring temperatures inside the sunbathing grasshoppers.

"Normally," he said, "grylli can stand about 100 degrees F. for 6 to 8 hours without detrimental effects. Then it starts to die. We've shown in lab that grasshoppers can actually cure themselves by basking in the light."

However, a type of E. grylli hailing from Australia seem to offer new hope in defeating the pests. That's because it may withstand the sizzling temperatures inside the basking insects, Carruthers said at the agency's Plant Protection Research Laboratory in Ithaca, N.Y.

He said the Australian fungus may be introduced on the western rangeland in this country as early as this summer. E. grylli is found throughout the United States, Canada and other places around the world besides Australia.

"We have to be careful that the Australian type affects only grasshoppers and not beneficial insects such as honeybees," Carruthers stressed. "But, we don't forsee a problem because E. grylli is very specific to grasshoppers."

E. grylli penetrates the grasshopper's body with enzymes that dissolve the pest's body cuticle. Then the fungus grows inside the grasshopper, circulating in the insect's blood and attacking body tissue and reserve fat supplies. After about a week, the grasshopper is dead, but the fungus lives on, producing strands that carry millions of spores out of the body.

"We know the Australian fungus will infect two of the three major grasshopper groups — the banded-wing and the spur-throated grasshoppers," he said. "We haven't evaluated the Australian type's effect on the third group, the slant-faced grasshoppers, but we'll do that this summer."

AL Herr & Brother Wins Award

Kenny Miller, parts manager for A.L. Herr & Brother of Quarryville, recently was awarded a Teddy Roosevelt San Juan Hill sword from Case IH. One of a handful who received the award, Miller received it for being "rough, rugged, and innovative when it comes to selling parts," according to R.A. Lindquist, director of parts sales for Case IH.

Miller and his wife, Gina, also went on an all-expense-paid Carribbean cruise as part of the promotion.

Myerstown Farmer Top Pork Producer In Nation

Paul Felty, second from left, was honored by DeKalb Swine Breeders recently for having the overall top-producing hog operation featuring DeKalb genetics in the nation. A Myerstown native, Felty has an average sow inventory of 312 and has a farrowing rate of 92 percent, pigs-per-sow rate of 10.67, and an average-weaned-per-litter number of 9.66.

Adding their congratulations for the annual award, which is sponsored by DeKalb Swine Breeders of DeKalb, Ill., were, from left, Glenn Esbanshade, Esbanshade Mills; Felty; Brent Hershey, Hershey Ag Services; and Jimmy Ramsey, DeKalb Swine Breeders.

Two other Pennsylvania farmers did well nationally. Like Felty, they are under contract with Hershey Ag Services and Esbanshade Mills and use DeKalb hogs. Sam Brubaker of Seven Valleys was first in the nation among 200-sow and smaller operations. Pat Joerger of McAllisterville was first among 1,000 plus sow operations.

Herbicides Available In Mini-Bulk Tank, Jug

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, NC. — Farmers and custom applicators who use Buctril(R) or Bronate(R) brand herbicides soon will find these products easier and more convenient to handle. The herbicides now are available in 110-gallon mini-bulk tanks and in new 2-½ gallon jugs that empty more quickly and with less splashing.

The heart of the mini-bulk system is a 110-gallon Snyder polyethylene tank that features a recessed pump housing and eight-way forklift entry. These features allow the tank to be stacked and handled easily.

A Great Plains 12-volt gear pump with a digital meter at the hose outlet speeds filling and provides convenient monitoring. The pump and hoses are specially designed for herbicides, and are backed by several years of field use.

Customers whose use volume does not call for a mini-bulk system will benefit from the new 2-½ gallon jugs for Buctril and Bronate. The jug is designed to reduce "glugging" while draining faster.

Buctril and Bronate are post-emergence herbicides used to control broadleaf weeds. Buctril is used primarily on corn, small grains, and seedling alfalfa. Bronate is a premix of bromoxynil and MCPA, and is used on small grains.

Buctril- and Bronate-brand herbicides now are offered in 110-gallon mini-bulk tanks and 2½ -gallon jugs. Both pesticides are post-emergerence herbicides used to control broadleaf weeds.

Grain Industry Could Face Railcar Shortages

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Unless the rail industry takes corrective steps, there will be a serious shortage of covered-hopper railcars for shipping grain by the end of this century — probably as early as 1991 — a U.S. Department of Agriculture official said today.

Martin "Buzz" Fitzpatrick, Jr., administrator of USDA's Office of Transportation, said that the shortage of railcars faced by grain shippers in the spring of 1988 could be repeated as early as 1991.

"In early 1988," Fitzpatrick said, "there was a 2- to 6-week delay for shippers in getting grain cars. For some shippers, the delay was as high as 14 weeks."

Fitzpatrick said an OT study showed that the cause was a "shrinking and aging" grain car fleet combined with increased demand, particularly for grain for export.

"We have now done a follow-up study," he said, "that identifies the car capacity needed to meet future grain transportation needs under various scenarios."

The jumbo covered-hopper car is the work horse of rail grain transportation, according to Fitzpatrick. "With gravity discharge and a capacity of 3,300 to 3,400 bushels, this kind of car has an optimum set for loading, unloading, protective and shipment-size characteristics for moving grain. In 1987, these cars transported 95 percent of all grain moved by rail."

However, since 1982 virtually no new cars have been added to the Nation's railcar fleet. At the same time, more and more cars are being lost annually for a variety of reasons — accidents, derailments, and retirement because of age.

"The bottom line," he said, "is that today's fleet of 98,600 cars used for grain shipments will drop to 66,300 by the year 2001. Our study shows the peak fleet requirement for that year to be 96,000 cars — resulting in a projected deficit of nearly 30,000 cars."

Currently, railroads own about 60 percent of the jumbo covered-hopper grain cars and grain shippers own the rest. "If this ratio is to be maintained," Fitzpatrick said, "the primary burden of adding new rail cars for grain shipments lies with the railroads, because 82 percent of the cars over 20 years old are owned by the railroads."

Summer Tips For Dairymen

Prolonged periods of hot humid weather can severely depress cows' appetites, milk production, fat tests and conception rates — and dairymens' profits. Memories of the summer of 1988 still linger. How can we help prevent them from recurring again this year?

Last month's column focused on ventilation, shading, sprinkling, etc. This month the focus is on herd management.

Maintain Appetites

One of our big challenges is to maintain cows' appetites. Cooling cows down with ventilation, shade and sprinkling will help. Another approach is to cut down on the amount of heat produced by cows. Cows generate heat when they are active and when they digest feed, especially forages. Feeding less forage and more grain can reduce heat production, but be careful in doing this. Remember, cows need a certain minimum amount of forage and fiber (26-28% NDF) to keep the rumen functioning normally. Don't violate this basic principal. If you do, you could make the cows acidotic, depressing appetites rather than preserving them and severely reducing fat tests.

If the herd is already near minimum levels of forage and fiber intake, consider feeding more of the forages during the cooler hours of the day or night. To reduce the work of digestion, feed higher quality forages. To stimulate intake, keep forages as fresh as possible and keep the mangers clean.

If grain levels are increased and forage intake is reduced in order to form a more nutrient-dense ration, reduce the risk of digestive upsets and maintain dry matter intakes by feeding grain frequently or by using total mix rations and by feeding buffers more generously. Also be sure the ration is properly balanced.

Dry matter intakes are also increased by having an abundant supply of cool, clean water close to the feeding area. Be sure the total bunk space and watering area is adequate for herd size. The feed and water should also be close to the cows' nest area.

As the cows consume more water and excrete more fluids, they also excrete more minerals from their system. Thus, it becomes necessary to increase the potassium (K), magnesium (Mg) and sodium (Na) levels in the ration to about 1.3%, 0.3% and 0.5% respectively.

The use of feed additives, such as niacin, live cell yeast and aspergillus oryzae have helped some herds combat heat combat heat stress and maintain higher levels of production.

Cow Handling, Conception, Etc.

Holding areas can be hot and stressful, especially in summer. Reduce the size of the group in the holding area for two reasons: 1.) less cow density means less heat production, better air circulation and more comfort, 2.) less standing time means cows have more time to be at the bunk and more time to rest in a cooler environment.

Avoid getting cows excited and overheated; handle the herd gently. This is especially important for cows and heifers that are being caught and restrained for breeding; excited, over-heated cattle have lower conception rates.

Observe cows for heat in the cooler hours of the day or night when they are most active. Consider separating sexually active cows from the remainder of the herd for two reasons: 1.) it keeps the rest of the herd calm and cooler, 2.) group-ing sexually active cows together stimulates more activity and makes the challenge of heat detection easier.

Hormones can also be used to help synchronize heats and create groups of sexually active animals. They can also help concentrate heat detection times. The use of heat detection aids may be especially beneficial in summer.

Remember that heat affects bulls as well as cows. So, if you are having difficulty getting cows settled artificially, think twice before relying on a herd bull to get the job done. Hot weather could make him sterile temporarily, and it will take several weeks to a month for him to recover from his sterility after the heat spell ends. Cows, on the other hand, respond rather quickly when cooler weather returns.

So, when cooler weather returns and cows become more sexually active, and your goal is to get as many cows settled as quickly as possible, you might have better success using A.I. than using a herd sire. With A.I., the semen was safely in storage during the hot weather and is viable, upon demand. The herd bull on the other hand, may be sterile for another few weeks; precious time could be lost if you rely on him.

Sick cows generally have poorer appetites and higher body temperatures — two problems we can do without especially in summer. Hot mucky conditions, sloppy areas and damp, stuffy barns are ideal conditions for supporting the growth and spread of infectious organisms. During the summer months the demands of field work may divert some of our attention away from the herd.

Continue to focus on sanitation to help prevent uterine and udder infections. Maintain clean dry stall beds and maternity areas. Prevent shaded areas from becoming slop holes; if enough shade can't be provided to prevent this, no shade is probably better than a sloppy shade.

Minimize stresses at calving time; a good dry cow and heifer raising program will help. Avoid having cows calve in hot weather.

If cows become very hot and are panting hard, hose them down frequently, while also protecting them from coliform mastitis.

Cooling Milk

Cows are not the only thing that may need to be hosed down in summer; milk compressors on

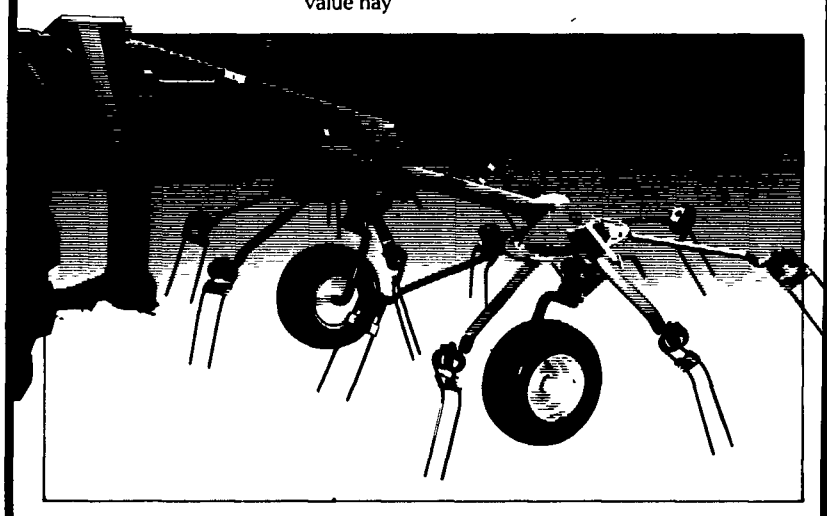
Save nutrient values of cut hay even if it rains.

DEUTZ ALLIS

Crop-saving rotary tedders. Proven rotary principle combines gentle crop conditioning, fluffing and spreading. Speeds up drying. Preserves nutrient values. Effective whether hay is lying in a swath or windrowed.

Weather-beating design. Deutz-Allis tedders save even windrowed hay that has been rained on. Gentle rotary motion lifts, fluffs, moves crop to dry ground. Spreads moist hay loosely on top. Fast drying, preserves green color of high value hay.

Natural drying made better. Rotary tedding action conditions hay by flexing stems and knocking off waxy coating. This quickens the natural evaporation process. Minimizes bleaching typical of poorer quality hay.



"Optiset" tine adjustment. Sets proper tine angle for clean pickup, maximum fluffing, uniform scatter with heavy or light crops. Each pair of tines equipped with a tine saver. Prevents broken tine from falling off to puncture a tire or cause other damage.

High-flotation gauge wheels. Allow unit to follow rough terrain without transmitting shock loads. Adjust to center right or left for moving material away from fence rows, keeping it within field boundaries.

Rotary tedder/rake. Does the work of two machines. Converts from a tedder to a rake with 3 quick-change adjustments. Changes back to a tedder just as easily. Ideal for medium-size operations.

Stop in. See what sets Deutz-Allis apart!

Yeutter Names Foreign Ag Service Administrator

WASHINGTON, DC. — Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter recently named Rolland E. (Bud) Anderson Jr. administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service.

"Bud Anderson is a career foreign service officer with more than 25 years experience in posts representing U.S. agricultural interests abroad," Yeutter said. "His distinguished service qualifies him uniquely to lead FAS during this important period of negotiation for reform in world agricultural trade."

Anderson's past assignments include minister-counselor for agricultural affairs at the U.S. Embassy in London (1986-89); U.S. agricultural counselor in the Hague, the Netherlands (1983-86); assistant administrator for international trade policy at FAS (1981-83); director of FAS' Dairy, Livestock and Poultry Division (1979-81), and 1974-77); and U.S. agricultural counselor in Bonn, West Germany (1977-79).

Anderson also worked in the FAS Grain and Feed Division (1973-74), and served as U.S. agricultural attache in Wellington, New Zealand (1970-73). His first overseas assignment was assistant U.S. agricultural attache in Bonn (1967-70). He began his career in FAS as an agricultural economist in the Dairy, Livestock and Poultry Division in 1962.

Anderson is a native of Iona, Minn., and is a graduate of South Dakota State University, Brookings, with a degree in agricultural economics.

Anderson succeeds former FAS Administrator Thomas O. Kay, who retired. FAS represents U.S. agricultural interests in foreign affairs, promotes exports of U.S. agricultural products, and administers USDA's export credit programs and certain kinds of foreign assistance including Food for Peace (P.L. 480) commodity donations and sales.

some farms may need some help on very hot days. Some compressors are not able to cool the milk down quickly enough and maintain low enough temperatures to prevent churning, low fat tests and high bacteria counts.

This is especially true on farms where cow numbers, production per cow and number of milky units being used increased, thus putting a larger demand on the compressor. The use of precoolers to lower the temperature of milk before it enters the tank can help alleviate the problem. Also be sure to install the compressor so it has access to a lot of air and so the heat of cooling can escape, or be used for heating water.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Norbco Redefines The Dairy Curtain

WESTMORELAND, NY. — Norbco Inc.'s Flexwall™ ventilation system is designed to set a new industry standard for dairy barn curtains.

Norbco is using heavy-duty steel pulleys with oil-impregnated bronze bearings to insure lifetime self-lubrication. These pulleys are mounted on a rugged steel three-bolt mounting bracket. Incorporating this strength into the system allows for the use of aircraft cable throughout the installation, thereby eliminating the problems associated with nylon rope droplines. Another outstanding feature of the Flexwall™ hardware package is the galvanized steel hem clamp. The uniqueness of this clamp allows for simple and easy drop line cable adjustment. These steel clamps maintain a secure grip to the heavy 1-inch hem pipe that offers superior weight and rigidity as compared to the light conduit commonly used. The bottom hem with hem pipe is also a standard feature in the Flexwall™ system, providing easy cleaning and maintenance. Finishing off the Flexwall™ system are the galvanized steel end caps mounted on the face of the building at each end of the opening. These act as a protective wind barrier for the ends of the curtain.

Four different types of fabric are available with the Flexwall™ system:

Norbco's extended-life curtain, custom formulated by Herculite Products, is a white uninsulated fabric that has a translucent coating on one side for increased light penetration. In the Norbco tradition, exceptional strength is the trademark of this material with an unprecedented 7-year warrantee.

Also available is Polylite®, a rugged translucent material that contains high ultraviolet light inhibitors for protection from the sun's rays. This material is currently being used in the poultry and hog industries and carries a 5-year warrantee.

Dairying In Pennsylvania

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co) — From the lush high-lands of the Poconos, through the rolling hills of Central Pennsylvania, and onward to the flatlands of the Commonwealth's western tier, one sight will remain constant - Pennsylvania's abundant supply of dairy farms. The dairy industry is the Commonwealth's number one agricultural industry; a very significant fact since agriculture is the leading industry in the state.

The Keystone State is home to over 700,000 dairy cattle, who are raised on the state's 13,700 commercial dairy farms. They produce 10.8 billion pounds of milk per year, placing them 5th in the nation. Pennsylvania bovines also boast an outstanding production record per cow averaging approximately 14,123 pounds of milk per year, several hundred pounds above the national average of 13,700 pounds per year.

Pennsylvania dairy plants manufactured 90.3 million gallons of ice cream last year, second nationally only to California's 108.3 million gallons. What these figures, and those of other products manufactured in state mean to Pennsylvania residents is approximately 54,000 jobs.

The forecast for continued success in the Pennsylvania dairy industry looks promising. In a recent study carried out by leading dairy economists, it was predicted that continued increases in production per cow could play a heavy factor in the future strength of Pennsylvania's dairy industry. Pennsylvania may soon overtake Minnesota as the fourth largest dairy production state.

Pennsylvania consumers will also play an important role in the success of this thriving industry. In an increasingly health-conscious society, consumers have recognized the benefit of natural dairy foods. This trend is noted in an escalating demand for lowfat milk, yogurt, cottage cheese as well as other cheese products.

Keeping the pulse on consumer demands in Pennsylvania is the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council. Says Board of Directors' member Dan Baker, "It's important to keep current on consumer trends. The producers and the public are a team. We (the producers) work hard to provide the products that consumers want and need for healthier lifestyle."

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council is a dairy promotion association funded by dairy producers from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Fruit Field Day Set For Biglerville Lab

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Tree fruit growers will have the opportunity to see the latest in fruit production research at a Grower Field Day at Penn State's Fruit Research Laboratory in Biglerville on July 20 from 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Penn State entomologists, horticulturists and plant pathologists will be on hand to discuss the latest advances in fruit production research. Tours and presentations will highlight new research and visitors will have the opportunity to discuss specific concerns.

"At Biglerville our scientists are carrying out interdisciplinary research essential to the continued success of the Pennsylvania fruit industry," says Dr. Charles R. Krueger, associate dean for research and associate director of the agricultural experiment station in Penn State's College of Agriculture. "The field day is intended to afford visitors the opportunity to learn about our latest research results and see our facilities."

"The activities and tours will focus on research aimed at reducing pesticide use through integrated pest management and the evaluation of cultural practices and growth control chemicals affecting tree growth and winter hardiness," says Dr. Kenneth D. Hickey, professor of plant pathology and scientist-in-charge of the Biglerville facility. "We will discuss the impact and application of new advances in biotechnology, artificial intelligence and ecology as part of an integrated past management system in tree fruits. We are including research being conducted in the laboratory and in the field."

The econtomology faculty presentations will center on two major tree fruit pests, the tufted apple budmoth and the lesser peach tree borer. Areas of special interest will include explanations of monitoring and understanding insecticide resistance, the influence of ground cover management practices and pheromone-mediated mating disruption.

Entomologists also will discuss ways to understand and manage resistance in acaricides.

Horticultural researchers will focus on evaluation of apple and peach rootstocks, physiological stress affecting winter hardiness in peaches and the use of growth control chemicals on apples. There also will be an evaluation of seedless table grapes.

Penn State horticulturists will explain studies on post-harvest physiology and controlled atmosphere storage of apples.

In plant pathology the emphasis will be on controlling fungal, bacterial and viral diseases through integrated disease management practices.

Growers will see the latest developments in determining fungicide application rates to tree-row volume and application method. Test results for SBI fungicide applied at different rates and timing for disease control on apples, peaches and cherries will be presented.

Plant pathologists will discuss integrated control measures for Cytospora canker on stone fruits. There will be an overview of problems caused by nematodes with an emphasis on dagger nematodes and the tomato ringspot virus. Specific research areas to be covered include establishing dagger nematode damage threshold values, studying the effect of ground cover management on dagger nematode population dynamics and screening for genetic resistance to tomato ringspot virus. Researchers will explain basic work on dagger nematode biology, ground covers and soil amendments.

Penn State advances in artificial intelligence will include an overview and demonstration of expert systems for managing diseases and insects of tree fruits. The 180-acre Fruit Research Laboratory, operated by Penn State's College of Agriculture, has been providing information for the benefit of the fruit industry for more than 60 years. The laboratory is located on University Drive which is off of Route 234 west of Biglerville in Adams County. Parking and admission are free.

Lunch will be served by the Fruit Research Lab staff. The cost is $5 per person. Lunch reservations should be mailed no later than July 13 to Peg Shaffer, Penn State Fruit Research Lab, P.O. Box 309, Biglerville, PA 17307.

For more information about the Grower Field Day, contact Shaffer or the faculty at the Fruit Researcher Lab at 717/677-6116.

USDA Develops New Dapple Apple Test

Washington, D.C. — National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) supports increased planting flexibility within a farm program system using more realistic yield statistics to make U.S. agriculture more market oriented, said NCGA President Steve Wentworth in congressional testimony on June 27, 1989 of the United States House of Representatives.

Before the Subcommittees on Wheat, Soybeans and Feed Grains and Cotton and Sugar, Wentworth, on Oreana, Ill., corn grower, stressed NCGA's support of market-oriented agriculture. "I think it's an emphasis on market factors that has helped to make the 1985 Food Security Act such a success."

He noted NCGA supports planting flexibility that allows producers to follow market signals more closely, "The so-called "10-25" option in last year's drought-relief bill was a good start toward a farmer flexibility program. It allowed farmers to plant soybeans and sunflowers on 10 to 25 percent of their base acres without losing base credit. However, that option was flawed, in my opinion, when USDA was allowed to limit the number of acres that could be switched, in order to keep soybean prices above $5.49 per bushel." Farmers were finally given authority to switch 80 percent of the land they signed up.

"A true farmers flexibility' program should set parameters for acreage substitution like the 10 to 25 percent range allowed this year and let farmers freely choose how much to switch," Wentworth said. He went on to point out that such true farmer flexibility would eliminate numerous trips to local ASCS officers and let farmers freely alternate among crops in any one growing season.

NCGA therefore, has real concerns that some of the so-called flexibility concepts, including the "triple base" proposals, would simply be used as a back-door to farm program spending.

"We recognize the need to cut government spending at all levels and feel the feed grains programs have contributed to the savings thus far," Wentworth added. "But let's not use the honorable goal of responding to market signals as a cover for unintended cuts in the programs so important to the nation's farmers."

NCGA also promotes the use of actual proven yields as the basis for program payments. "Although farmers were allowed to prove their actual yields earlier this decade, they have not been able to update their yield data since 1986. Many farmers painfully felt the result last year, when their disaster payments were based on USDA's established yields for their farm, which were substantially below their actual yields," Wentworth said.

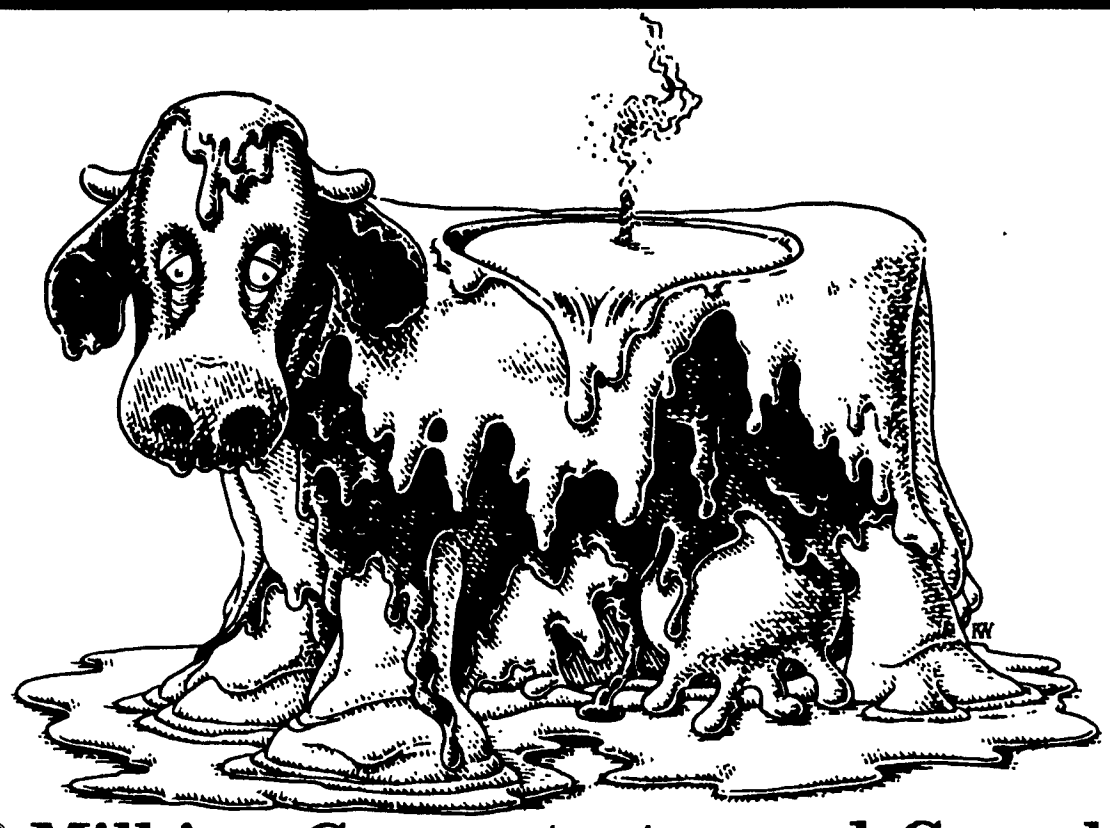
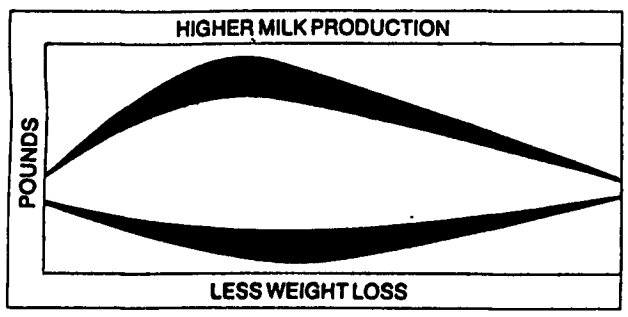
Announcing the end of burned-out high-performance cows.



Maxi-Tech® brand Milking Concentrates and Completes helps her to milk to the max without draining her reserves.

Your cows react to hard work in much the same way you do. When they work extra hard to give maximum production, they can become drained. Exhausted. Burned out. And that can lead to reduced butterfat test and weight loss, costly missed heats, health problems and loss in future production capability.



But that's all changed. Now there's milking supplements that help your cows produce to their fullest genetic capacity while maintaining their body condition. It's Purina's Maxi-Tech Lineup, the highest-energy milking supplements you can buy.

The secret is its unsurpassed nutrition — featuring high-energy content, optimum nitrogen sources, fermentable fiber, minerals, vitamins and specially blended macro-nutrients. So unlike other concentrates, Maxi-Tech's keep your cows in great shape to encourage capacity production, good health and fast breedback—without depressing butterfat levels. Lactation after lactation.

So whether you grind and mix or feed a total mixed ration, your cows can now milk to the max without burning themselves out. See your Purina dealer today for a Maxi-Tech supplement that is right for your operation.
